CONNOLLY PLEA FOR CASH TOLD

Defending assessments on the salaries of his office employes to meet his campaign expenses, former Clerk of Suffolk Civil Courts John Patrick Connolly quoted Shakespeare, Holy Scriptures and Benjamin Franklin and likened himself to Julius Caesar, John J. McCarthy, Connolly's former chief clerk testified today.

McCarthy was the first witness called in Suffolk Superior Criminal Court, when trial of Connolly and William T. Conway on extortion and conspiracy charges was resumed.

McCarthy identified excerpts from a speech which he said Connolly read, March 14, 1939, to a mass meeting of 85 or 90 of his office workers.

SPEECH IN RECORD

The excerpts were read into the trial record by Atty. Abner R. Sisson, Connolly's lawyer, in cross-examination of McCarthy.

The Connolly speech, as quoted, was in part as follows:

"The jobs you (Connolly's employes) hold under me were obtained not for what you know but for whom you know.

"The pages of history, even those that go far back into the days of antiquity, are replete with stories of groups and factions in different nations seeking the power of public office.

WHY THEY KILLED CAESAR

"Without going back to the very early days, let me cite the following:

"Just before the dawn of Christianity, Julius Caesar was foiled, as very ably told by Shakespeare, because other fellows wanted the jobs.

"Even Christ, himself, was crucified because He was 'upsetting the harmony that went with the sinecures held by t hescribes whose peace of mind He disturbed because His preachings meant loss of their jobs and loss of the shekels that poured into their coffers.

"So the seeking of public office is no new thing and the desire to get on the public payroll is no modern novelty.

1000 WANT EVERY JOB

"As we review the complexion of public payrolls, we are impressed by how lucky some people have been.

"There are 1000 applicants for every job that becomes vacant.

"These jobs you (Connolly's workers) hold are good jobs. The hours are short and the pay is high.

"We are fortunate to be here.

"But let us be very frank. They are trying to exterminate me. I must protect myself. I need help. I can't do it alone."

HANG TOGETHER OR—

"As Benjamin Franklin said, we must all hang together, or we will most assuredly hange separately."

British Confiscate 8 Italian Coal Cargoes As Prizes of War

BULLETIN

LONDON, March 6 (AP)—Britain today ordered the cargoes of eight Italian ships—declared to be coal from Germany—held as prizes in her tightening campaign to halt all sea-borne exports from Germany.

By CHARLES A. SMITH

International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, March 6—With 11 Italian coal-carrying merchant ships lying off contraband control ports awaiting inspection under bristling British guns, the British government today rejected suggestions that Swedish iron ore being transported to Germany should be seized.

In answer to a question in the House of Commons, Winston Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, pointed out that arrest of the Swedish traffic to Germany "would involve many serious considerations."

Meanwhile, authough the ministry of economic warfare held that only nine Italian ships laden with German coal were being held, the Rapido and Lyana arrived during the day, making a total of 11 visible from the shore.

In addition, a tanker presumed to be Italian could be seen.

SEIZE ONLY CARGO

An official statement was said that none of the ships had yet been unloaded and that all were awaiting inspection. The vessels themselves will not be seized, it was said.

British spokesmen denied the seizures were in the nature of retaliation for suspension of Anglo-Italian trade negotiations. Hopes were expressed Italy eventually would accept Britain's offer to supply all the sea-borne coal she needs.

This country's swift action to block German coal exports to Italy was followed by an authoritative indication that the government is now "sitting tight" with regard to the coal seizures and maintains that it is up to Rome to take the next step.

CANADA AIRMEN 'REVOLT'

OTTAWA, March 6 (Canadian Press)—Ontario's premier, Mitchell Hepburn, charging that there was a "violent disturbance" at the Royal Canadian air force training center at St. Thomas last month, said today in Toronto he would accept an invitation extended by Dominion Defense Minister Norman Rogers to visit the center.

Hepburn said he would demand a full inquiry into the matter of the alleged disturbances. He suggested Monday for his visit.

Hepburn, fiery opponent of the government of Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King, said there was a parade and demonstration at the training base in protest against "lack of training," that it took military authorities three days to round up the demonstrators, but that the censors suppressed the story.

St. Thomas is in Elgin County, Hepburn's constituency, and he owns a farm nearby.

Defense Minister Rogers, denying the whole business and inviting Premier Hepburn to visit the center with newspaper men, declared:

"Each time Premier Hepburn indulges his flair for abuse and for groundless statements, for loose and violent speech, he is a party to the betrayal of Canada."

Big Guns Roar On West Front

PARIS, March 6 (INS)—While fog and rain prevented aerial activity along the western front, artillery exchanges occurred today in the Salace sector and a few raids by German patrols west of the Vosges mountains were repulsed.

Keniston to Succeed Judge Duff on Bench

Davis B. Keniston, former chairman of the Metropolitan District Commission, was named by Governor Saltonstall today to succeed Judge John Duff, who resigned as associate justice of Boston Municipal Court.

The position pays $9000 a year and the appointment is for life.

Keniston has been practicing law since his graduation from Harvard Law School in 1905. He is a graduate of Dartmouth. He was in the Legislature from 1919 to 1924 and was chairman of the commission from 1924 to 1934.

The Governor also submitted to his council the name of John L. Hurley of Brookline for approval as a member of the Appellate Tax Board at a salary of $7000.

Hurley is to succeed Charles S. Stapleton, whose term expired. The appointment is for six years.

Raymond J. Kenney, who has been in the department for many years, was named to succeed Ernest J. Dean as commissioner of conservation. Dean resigned last week on the eve of a hearing on charges against him in conection with hurricane spending by the department.

Under suspension of the rules, the council confirmed Kenney's appointment

W. Edward Balmer of Northbridge was reappointed to the post of medical examiner for the seventh Worcester district.

Frank L. Riley of Worcester, was named as a member of the State judicial council to succeed Charles L. Hibbard, resigned.

Riley is a former president of the Worcester County Bar Association.

Mary Livermore Barrows, Melrose, former State Representative, was reappointed as a member of the Civil Service Commission.

Kenneth H. Hemenway, Northampton, was named a trustee of the Northampton State Hospital, succeeding the late Anne O'Keefe Hefferman.

DUTCH SUB RAMMED, SUNK, 3 OF CREW FEARED DEAD

AMSTERDAM, March 6 (AP)—The Netherlands submarine O-11 was sunk in a collision with a tugboat in the Nieuw Diep today, but a daring rescue helped save all except three of the crew of about 30.

Two sergeants and a cook were trapped aboard the submarine, and little hope was held that they could be rescued. No signals were received from inside the vessel, and it was feared they were caught in the flooded crew's quarters.

There was a possibility, however, that the trio might be safe in the watertight bow torpedo chamber with a 24-hour supply of air.

The submarine was cruising on the surface at the Denhelder naval harbor preparing to go to sea when rammed amidships by the tug Amsterdam.

About 10 men on deck sprang clear and swam to the seawall.

Ten minutes later, a crowd gathered on the wall saw bubbles. Then the periscope appeared momentarily. After another 10 minutes, part of the stern emerged.

Two naval officers in a nearby rescue boat leaped aboard the stern and managed to pry open a hatch and help the imprisoned crew to safety.

(The O-11, built in 1925 and with a surface displacement of 483 tons, has a normal complement of 29 men according to Jane's directory of fighting ships. It is one of 30 submarines which the Netherlands either has in service, or is building for delivery this year.)

Dentist Denies Girl Attack, Blames Fall

It wasn't that way at all, Dr. George F. Winchester, prominent Dorchester dentist, asserted today on the witness stand in superior court in denying testimony by Miss Helen K. Curley of Roxbury that he twice assaulted her.

GRACE STAFFORD
Wins Freedom

The 32-year-old plaintiff, whose parents live in Savin st., Roxbury, but who is a script reader in New York, is suing the dentist for $20,000 damages for injuries he allegedly inflicted on her in March, 1937.

In her testimony yesterday, she asserted that he had tried to drag her into a hotel room and had punched her, and that when he took her to a doctor the next day for treatment of an injured ear he again punched her.

CLAIMS SHE FELL

Dr. Winchester's story today on the witness stand, however, was considerably at variance with Miss Curley's version.

Dr. Winchester

He claimed that she suffered her ear injury when she fell while getting into a taxicab and he declared that in the office of the ear specialist the next day he merely slapped her lightly on one cheek while they were chaffing over each other's occupations.

Testimony was completed at noon. Counsel were arguing this afternoon and Judge Allen G. Buttrick was to charge the jury.

Dr. Winchester testified that he has known Miss Curley since 1934, four years prior to his marriage, and that he now lives with his wife in Commonwealth ave., Back Bay.

WED SONJA'S STAND-IN

Tall, slender, with a tiny mustache and wearing gold-rimmed glasses, the dentist said he was introduced to Miss Curley by her brother, Edward, with whom he went to high school.

RUNAWAY TRUCK RIPS SPA FRONT

As its frantic driver wrestled with brakes and steering gear in a vain attempt to stop its mad dash, a seven-ton city public works truck plunged backward down National st., South Boston, today, tearing away the corner of a store and ending its flight by crashing into another truck.

Charles Hatch of Jenkins st., South Boston, the driver, a storekeeper and two men who were in the store escaped injury.

Two large plate glass windows in the store were shattered, and a truck owned by the Purity Cone Confectionery Co. was badly damaged. The runaway truck itself was only slightly damaged.

Hatch's truck was parked on the steep grade in National st. when the brakes suddenly gave way. The vehicle gained momentum as it rolled 150 feet down the hill, but he remained in the driver's seat fighting to gain control.

At the junction of Dorchester and Fourth sts. the runaway truck rammed the National Spa. Garabed Kaderiam, the proprietor; Sebastian Alongi and Thomas Perrota were showered with glass but escaped serious injury.

Then the huge rubbish truck caromed off and into the parked truck.

Executioner Foiled By Death in Delaware

WILMINGTON, Del., March 6 (AP)—Death cheated the law and medical science tonight in an attempt to bring 54-year-old Frank Mondezelewski to trial on a charge of murder.

The prisoner died a few hours after surgeons removed a bullet from his brain. Mondezelewski consented to the operation when informed he faced certain death otherwise.

Divorce Won By Worcester Film Actress

LOS ANGELES, March 6—Grace Stafford, film actress and former Worcester, Mass., schoolgirl, divorced her cowboy-actor husband today, because, she said:

"Our temperaments just don't seem to complement each other."

Miss Stafford has had bit parts in "Dr. Socrates," "Anthony Adverse," and "Confessions of a Nazi Spy." She went to the films by way of stock and radio.

A year ago she almost terminated her screen career by flying away from Hollywood to play stock at Skowhegan, Me.

Restored to favor, after a bit of radio work, she said today:

"I'm back in pictures and believe me I'm going to stay."

Miss Stafford is the daughter of Edward I. Boyle, old-time blind violinist and vaudeville actor. She started her stage career after leaving high school before graduation. She made her first stage appearance in "The Bat," a New York production.

She has played in New Zealand and Australia. One of her admirers is Francis Lederer, who said after playing opposite her in a radio skit:

"She's the smoothest actress I ever worked with."

Today she refused to discuss any future romance.

"I have work to do," said she.

MAXINE ELLIOTT DIES ON RIVIERA

PARIS, March 6 (INS)—Maxine Elliott, world-famous American actress of another generation, died last night at her villa, the Chateau l'Horizon, at Juan Les Pins, it was learned today. She was 68 years old.

Funeral arrangements are awaiting the arrival on the Riviera of her sister, Lady Forbes-Robertson.

Miss Elliott, a stage beauty whom the hackneyed phrase "the toast of New York" fitted better than any of her contemporaries, had lived for many years at Juan Les Pins.

There her chateau had been a mecca for persons of title and intellectual accomplishments.

DEATH SHOCKS PARIS

She had not been well of recent months and her public appearances were few. But until a comparatively short time ago, she was perhaps the best-known figure on the Riviera, with her smart clothes, her seemingly imperishable youth and her indispensable pet monkey.

News of Miss Elliott's death came as a shock to many friends and acquaintances in Paris, even though they knew she had suffered a heart attack last summer.

A marble-fronted theater in New Yorks West 39th st., just off the gay white way where she once ruled supreme, stands today as a memorial to Jessica Dermot, who came out of Rockland, Me., to carve a niche for herself in the theatrical and society world that no woman ever held before or since.

The theater bears the name of

Woman Unhurt In Roxbury Blast

Just as Mrs. Irene Schneiderman, 24, of Blue Hill ave., Dorchester, leaped to safety, a defective heater exploded and set fire to her periodical store, Warren st., Robbury, today.

She had noticed the heater sputtering and then saw flames start from it. She ran to the sidewalk just as the explosion occurred.

Firemen confined the blaze to the one-story wooden structure. Damage was estimated at $1000.

Snow Flurries Headed Here

Cloudy weather with scattered snow flurries and lower temperatures tonight and continuing through tomorrow morning was forecast by the weatherman today as the sun made a momentary appearance.

While conditions throughout New England remain generally unsettled, Boston may look forward to fair weather some time tomorrow, with gentle zephyrs from the west.

Meanwhile throughout the State workmen were busily repairing storm damage and after three days State highways were in safe condition for automobile travel.

Grandma Killer Gets 30 Years

PROVIDENCE, R. I., March 6 (AP)—Elmer L. Leduc, 20, of Woonsocket, who killed his 72-year-old grandmother in this city Jan. 4, 1939, by slugging her over the head with a milk bottle, was sentenced by Judge G. Frederick Frost in superior court today to 30 years in state prison for second degree murder.

Under the sentence, Leduc, with time off for good behavior, will be eligible for parole in about 12½ years.

Arraign 7 Youths As 'Thrill Firebugs'

Seven alleged "thrill firebugs" who, according to police, have confessed setting at least 15 fires in six months, with total damage of about $100,000, were formally charged today in Woburn court with the malicious burning of buildings.

The group, all residents of Stoneham, include two brothers in one family and three in another, and the alleged confessions came after 12 hours of questioning.

Charged with setting the fires for "the thrill of it" are Robert Chambers, 23, and his brother Roy, 19, both of Hillside rd.; William Theobold, 18, and his brothers, Herbert, Jr., 19, and Joseph, 16, all of Graystone rd.; Donald Davitt, 21, of Main st., and George Angelo Petto, 18, of South Marble st.

All were arranged before Judge David Nagle. They pleaded not guilty and were held in $1000 each for hearing March 20.

Joseph Theobold was held as a delinquent for juvenile session of court. Petto was charged with attempting to set a fire and the others with malicious burning of buildings.

After the arraignment they were taken to East Cambridge jail and state detectives prepared to go before the Middlesex County grand jury.

During the 12 hours of questioning by State Detective Edward P. O'Neill, Police Capt. Clarence Nelson, Fire Chief William McCall and Patrolmen George McDonough and Robert Bradley—all excepting O'Neill being of Stoneham—the youths allegedly admitted that among their fires was the $35,000 Bell block blaze which threatened the heart of Stoneham during the St. Valentine Day blizzard.

Not only did the youths enumerate the fires which they set, but described in detail their careful system of starting the blazes and listed several buildings, including the Stoneham theater and a restaurant, which they had marked for destruction, police revealed.

QUIZZED ALL NIGHT

In addition to Stoneham fires, the ring told of setting blazes in Woburn, Reading and Malden, police said. Among these was the $2500 Murray Tannery fire in Woburn last November, officials asserted.

Although officials in the various communities had been suspicious of the cause of several recent fires, Chief McCall of Stoneham disclosed that circumstances surrounding a Stoneham fire on Monday first pointed to the youths.

This fire broke out in the building in Stoneham sq., where the town's Masonic lodge has headquarters. Firemen found a mass of smouldering papers stuffed under a staircase, police said.

Chief McCall recognized the 20-year-old Main st. youth, who rang the alarm for Monday night's fire, as the same person who sounded the alarm for the Bell block blaze.

Inspector O'Neill was called into the investigation and soon the seven members of the alleged ring were in custody.

The youths allegedly described how they traveled around in an auto on their fire-setting expeditions. One of the group always acted as "chauffeur, two were "torch men," two were "tinder men," and the remaining pair served as lookouts, police claim.

In starting the fires, they followed the same routine of attaching burning cigarettes to boxes of matches, which were deposited in piles of gasoline-soaked rubbish, according to investigators.

Hits Widow's Story In Death of Three

MIDDLETOWN, Ct., March 6 (INS)—State police today resumed their investigation into the tragic deaths of Alden Schlosser, 35, ginger ale salesman, and his two young daughters at their Lake Beseck home in Middlefield, which was destroyed by fire last January.

The probe continued following a report by Coroner Morris H. Wruebel, who found after a two-day hearing that the trio met death "at the hands of a person or persons unknown."

Although Mrs. Jeannette Roper Schlosser, the widow, was at the inquest, she refrained from testifying on advice of counsel.

HITS WIDOW'S STORY

In her story to state police, the widow said her husband bound and gagged her and carried her to a spot 50 feet away from their cottage.

She also said that after her husband returned to the house, she heard several shots. This led to a belief the husband shot and killed his three-year-old daughter Jeannette and five-month-old daughter Alice and then took his own life after setting fire to the cottage.

The coroner found that "it would have been impossible" for the widow "to have bound and gagged herself in exactly the way she was found."

"I find further," the coroner said, "that there were discovered on the right thumb and on part of the index finger of the right glove that Mrs. Schlosser was wearing more than 100 particles of nitrate, which, according to expert opinion, came from undischarged gun powder.

POWDER ON GLOVES

"I find that in every case where a gun is discharged some of these particles are thrown back onto the hand which holds the gun.

"I find," the coroner continued, "that although Mrs. Schlosser claims that she had put these gloves on because she had applied vaseline to her hands to prevent chapping, no evidence of vaseline or any other fatty material was found on the inside of the gloves, though a most microscopic and chemical examination was made."

Woman's Body In Navy Drydock

The body of an unidentified woman, about 45 years old, was found today floating in the navy drydock beside Army Base pier, South Boston.

How long the body had been in the water and whether there was evidence of foul play remained undetermined pending medical examination.

Police said the victim had dark brown hair, blue eyes and a ruddy complexion. She was five feet four inches tall, weighed 142 pounds and wore a fur collared three-quarters-length coat over a heavy blue coat-sweater, brown skirt and blue print shirtwaist.

There was a birthmark on the right side of the face.

New York Political Leader Found Dead

ALBANY, N. Y., March 6 (AP)—Charles J. (Tod) Connaughton, state superintendent of public buildings and veteran Albany Democratic leader, was found dead today at his home.

Acting Police Chief William J. Fitzpatrick and James J. McGuinness, assistant district attorney, were informed Connaughton had been ill for several months.

2 HELD IN CONSPIRACY

Charges of conspiracy to defraud were brought by police today against two Dorchester youths, one of whom allegedly stole the other's car "by invitation" in an effort to collect insurance money.

MRS. RICHARD KNIGHT
Divorce Is Out

Knights Find Joy in Reunion

CHICAGO, March 6—It was happy reunion in old Chicago today for two lonesome baby girls, their quite excited mother and their head-standing dad, Richard Allen Knight, the "white knight" of New York's Metropolitan Opera.

For the reconciliation which everyone said would never happen is really coming true.

Mrs. Dorothy Ledyard Knight, heiress to millions, has finally given in to her playboy, lawyer husband, who cried out her charms in New York, Honolulu and most lately on California's coast.

For months, Knight has rambled on with reporters closely following his antics. His one repeated refrain since the couple separated a year ago has been, "I love my Dorothy. She's wonderful. She must take me back.'

Connecticut Gas Sign Law Is Ruled Illegal

HARTFORD, Ct., March 6 (INS)—The State Supreme Court of Errors today declared unconstitutional a state law prohibiting the display of price signs by gasoline station owners anywhere except on the pumps and restricting the size of such signs.

Deciding an appeal by Ralph Miller of Westhaven, the high court held the law passed by the 1939 General Assembly was an improper use of police power. Miller was convicted of violating the law by displaying a large sign advertising his gasoline prices.

Lost Child Found Between Two Dogs

TAHLEQUAH, Okla., March 6 (AP)—Nona Coppinger, 4, was found huddled between two pet dogs for warmth after a 16-hour search in rough hill country.

The child disappeared from the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Coppinger, yesterday afternoon. She suffered from exposure.

2d Quincy Teacher Won't Salute Flag

While a Quincy school teacher defiantly faced action by the school board because she refuses to salute the flag, John Flavin, school board member, said today he was investigating a second case involving a Quincy teacher.

Flavin said the board may call a special meeting to consider the case of Miss Elizabeth M. Graham of North Weymouth, third grade teacher in the Daniel Webster school at Quincy Point.

Flavin said his attention was called to the second case after he had talked with Principal Theodore Silva of the Cranch elemetary school.

"I don't know the details, but I am investigating," he said.

Silva, however, said "it was news to him." He claimed he did not know of any teacher in his school who refused to take part in the flag-saluting ceremonies.

Miss Graham, who is said to stand with her hands at her side while her pupils go through the patriotic rites, explained she is a member of Jehovah's Witnesses.

She described that religious sect as "a group following the commandments of Jehovah God, who designated God as the Almighty and who do not bow to any image of that which represents another thing."

"There can be no compromise," she added. "This is a matter of life and death to a member of Jehovah's Witnesses, and I will not waver in my action, even if it means that I will lose my position."

She said Supt. of Schools James Muir spoke to her about "changing" and saluting the flag, but she said she told him she "could not change, because I have my creed and I live up to it."

Mayor Thomas S. Burgin expressed amazement that there was a school teacher on the city payroll who was not saluting the flag. He instructed Muir to make a complete report of the case.

On March 10, 1938, a school teacher, Miss Cora M. Foster, of the Jehovah Witnesses, was discharged by the Lynn School Board because of refusal to salute the flag as prescribed by school regulations.

Saturday Last Snow Pay Day

Saturday will be the final pay day for snow removal workers, it was announced at City Hall today.

Checks totaling $150,000 will be ready for 6100 workers and city officials plan to keep close watch on all seeking pay.

Each man will be required to present identification credentials and officials plan to keep watch on armored cars which were in use last week, cashing checks for the workers at the city yards.

George G. Hyland, commissioner of public works, has ordered all foremen to check those applying for pay in an effort to determine whether reports are true that many racketeers are receiving pay under false names.

Republicans Hail Victory in Iowa

DES MOINES, Ia., March 6 (AP)—Republicans today hailed a victory in the Sixth Iowa District congressional election as an indication that the 1938 GOP comeback in the Corn Belt has carried over into the presidential year of 1940.

Robert K. Goodwin, Redfield, Ia., mayor, won the special election to fill the unexpired term of the late Rep. C. C. Dowell, Des Moines Republican. His margin over Byron G. Allen of Des Moines, his New Deal opponent, was more than three to two.

HINT F. D. TO REVEAL HIS CHOICE

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, March 6 (INS)—President Roosevelt's advisers are urging him to write a letter within the next three weeks to a Mid-western friend, describing the liberal type of Democrat he will support for the presidency this year, it was learned today.

The President's advisers say he will do so.

AWAIT HIS ANSWER

The letter would serve as the President's answer to a newspaper story, quoting him as saying he is ready to retire, favors Secretary of State Cordell Hull as his successor and opposes Postmaster-Gen. James A. Farley for Vice-President because of his Catholic faith.

The President smilingly declined to reveal his 1940 plans at his Tuesday press conference, although several hundred newspapermen hammered questions at him.

OPPOSED TO GARNER

If the President does as his advisers predict, his views on the Democratic nominee for 1940 will be made public just before the voters of Wisconsin troop to their presidential preferential primary, April 2.

The President is opposed by Vice-President John Vance Garner in both the Wisconsin and Illinois primaries. Intimates say the President, if he writes the letter, will make it clear he does not consider Garner as the type of liberal he can support for the presidency.

Dane and Rollins Win in Brookline

Youth was triumphant today after one of the most unique municipal elections in Brookline history.

Two new faces appeared on the five-men board of selectmen. The board's chairman, Samuel F. Blanchard, was defeated; the three-man school committee was re-elected; the experimental voting machines were declared a success; 53 per cent of registered voters turned out despite bad weather.

Highlight was the victory of Daniel G. Rollins, lawyer, and Edward Dane, young business man, who were elected to fill two vacancies on the board of selectmen.

Re-elected to the school committee were George E. Hills, chairman; Edward H. McGrath, who was highest vote getter with 9499 votes, and Mrs. Viola R. Finanski, wife of Judge Abraham E. Finanski of Massachusetts Superior Court.

Constables elected were Robert Boehner, Andrew Bruce, Edward R. Cahey, Charles Haggood and Edward P. Sullivan.

Here's the vote:

School Committee: McGrath, 9499; Pinanski, 7521; Hill, 7043; and McCabe, 6131.

Of the 25,187 registered voters, 13,438 turned out in the stormy weather.

Heavy voting was reported in Precinct 6, where 9 automatic voting machines were installed for the first time in a Brookline election. Election officials believe curiosity over the innovation inspired a 64 per cent turnout.

Thirty-six minutes after the last vote was registered, the mechanical robot came up with final results. In sharp contrast, one precinct did not report until seven hours after the polls closed.

Welles' Hope On Delayed War

LAUSANNE, March 6 (AP)—The feeling of the Welles fact-finding mission is that so long as a war of devastation is delayed just so long there is hope, it was understood authoritatively today.

This conviction of the mission, headed by United States Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles, is founded on the belief of the peoples of Italy, Germany, France and Great Britain—a belief which has made a deep impression on the mission, sent to Europe by President Roosevelt to investigate conditions here.

Welles Meets French Leaders Tomorrow

PARIS, March 6 (AP)—The French government announced today that Sumner Welles would be received by both Premier Daladier and Edouard Heriot, president of the Chamber of Deputies, tomorrow almost immediately after his arrival from Switzerland on his European survey mission.

Jury Gets Dazey Murder Case

LOS ANGELES, March 6 (AP)—Jurors were ready to start deliberation today in the case of Dr. George K. Dazey, physician charged with murdering his wife, Doris, as attorneys completed closing arguments.

Deputy District Attorney Joseph Carr asked the jury to find the defendant guilty of first degree murder and inflict the death penalty.

Carr emphasized the physical aspects of the death of Mrs. Dazey, who, the State claims, was killed by the physician because he doubted the parentage of their son, 5-year-old Walter Kendall Dazey.

The defense contends Mrs. Dazey was a suicide by carbon monoxide.

has as yet been prepared, it was stated, and no subsequent Italian communication regarding detention of the ten vessels has as yet been received.

Thirty-one Italian and nine American vessels were among 105 ships whose cargoes were examined by the British contraband control during the week ended March 2, the ministry of economic warfare announced.

The vessels were detained in defiance of a sharp Italian protest warning that British measures to blockade German coal exports were "abusive" and might seriously impair Anglo-Italian relations.

OTHER SHIPS TO SAIL

It was disclosed that two of the ships, the 4319-ton Luigi Razza and the 4421-ton Hermada, have been in contraband control port for two days. It was presumed, in the absence of an official announcement, they were loaded with German coal as were the other vessels detained.

Several more Italian ships laden with German coal were expected to reach a British control port later in the day.

(A Reuters dispatch from Rotterdam said four more vessels carrying German coal were expected to sail for Italy today. They were listed as the 6813-ton Nila, the 8181-ton Gianfranco, the 8670-ton Amsterdam and the 4853-ton Tina Primo, all registered at Genoa.)

Another Italian vessel thus far "arrested" was believed to be the 4356-ton San Luigi, which anchored south of Deal preparatory to submitting to contrabrand control.

ALL CARRY COAL

Seven of the Italian ships held at the Downs, all laden with coal, were the 5968-ton tanker Loasso, the 8631-ton Orato, the 4170-ton Absirtea, the 5339-ton Numidia, the 5630-ton Felce, the 7272-ton Ernesto and a ship identified as either the 4019-ton Caterina Madre or the 5403-ton Caterina Gerolimich.

Authoritative quarters in London stressed that final decision regarding disposition of the coal rests with the "enemy exports committee" of the ministry of economic warfare.

But it was believed probable that if Italian ownership of the coal is definitely established, all the ships will be unloaded and the coal sold.

In this event, it was stated, proceeds from the sales would be placed in a trust fund and handed over to Italy at termination of the war.

The vessels were escorted into the control ports by British warships in the face of threatened Italian reprisals and their detention marked a further major step in Britain's blockade of German exports.

Altogether, it was understood, some 17 Italian vessels have taken on German coal at Rotterdam and other Dutch ports, and it was believed that all of these ships will be halted by the British for examination.

Italy Seeks Peaceful End to British Clash

ROME, March 6 (INS)—Through its controlled press, the Italian government gave unmistakable evidence today it would prefer an amicable settlement of the dispute arising from Britain's blockade of German coal exports to Italy.

Fascist newspapers continued to refrain from publishing the sharp editorials that some quarters had expected following the stiff Italian protest to London. Instead they carried long dispatches from abroad, stressing the juridical aspects of the case and carefully avoiding dramatization of the dispute.

Italian officials remained silent on the British detention of Italian ships. It was made clear no comment would be made officially pending "clarification" of the British attitude.

(An Associated Press dispatch from Rome said extra police were stationed near the British embassy today as a precaution against possible demonstrations against Britain. The demonstrations failed to take place, however. There had been rumors that students were planning to organize them. Students attempted to gather before the British consulate in Florence yesterday, but police dispersed them.)

Planes Cause Air Raid Scare Over Gibraltar

GIBRALTAR, March 6 (AP)—Five unidentified planes approaching Gibraltar from the northwest today caused the fifth air raid alarm of the war.

The planes deviated to the south as crowds quietly took shelter.

20 BRITISH KILLED, 16 SEIZED BY NAZIS

BERLIN, March 6 (AP)—Twenty British soldiers were killed and 16 were taken prisoner on the western front yesterday when German shock troops stormed a British dugout in the Moselle sector, the German official news agency, DNB, reported today.

The German high command's daily communique told only of the capture of the 16 prisoners. Elucidating, DNB said they were members of the Duke of Cornwall's infantry regiment and told other details of the clash.

GERMANS JUBILANT

An exchange of hand grenade and artillery fire preceded the dugout storming, according to DNB, and the English left 20 dead on the scene.

The German shock troops' surprise attack was said to have disclosed that the British apparently were stationed at only one small point of the front line, flanked on both sides by the French.

DNB jubilantly reported:

"At last German shock troops have succeeded in getting in fighting touch with British troops."

FRENCH JER NEWS

It was asserted this was the first time the Germans had had an actual fight with British troops on the western front since the war began. The report recalled that German outposts early in January repelled the British in two small clashes.

DNB said news of the capture of the 16 prisoners, among whom there was one sergeant, was transmitted orally by German vanguards to the French lines.

The response in many cases, according to DNB account, was 'malicious laughter' and shouts from the French to the effect that "that serves them right, they're well cared for on your side.'

French Doom 'Radio Traitors' to Death

PARIS, March 6 (AP)—A French military tribunal today handed down death sentences for Paul Ferdonner and Andre Obrecht, the Stuttgart "radio traitors." Tried in absentia, they were convicted of treason.

Ferdonnet and Obrecht, both Frenchmen, were accused of treasonable broadcasting nightly from Stuttgart, 50 miles across the border in Germany, that "the British will provide the machines and the French will provide the breasts."

Terrorists' Bomb Damages Bank

LONDON, March 6 (AP)—A bomb believed by police to have been laid by the outlawed Irish republican army shattered the windows of a bank in fashionable Park Lane shortly after 5 a. m. today (11 p. m., Tuesday, EST). No one was injured.

BRITAIN'S PALESTINE RULE HIT IN COMMONS

LONDON, March 6 (AP)—New restrictive land laws, arousing disorders in Palestine, brought a parliamentary debate today on a Labor party demand that the House of Commons censure the government's handling of the ticklish Arab-Jewish situation.

Dispatches from Palestine reported the death today of a man injured while participating in a Jewish demonstration at Haifa last night. This was the second fatality of disorders which followed the Feb. 28 publication of the new land restrictions. An 18-year-old Jewish student, hurt in a demonstration at Tel Aviv Saturday, died yesterday.

Dispatches also reported a British constable injured as police yesterday broke up a demonstration by stone-throwing Jewish crowds at Jerusalem.

Windows of buildings along Jaffa rd. were smashed, and police established curfews in Jewish sections of Palestine and in the Jewish city of Tel Aviv.

Fourteen British policemen and a number of Jews were reported injured in disturbances Saturday, but the Daily Telegraph said these were much more serious, with 18,000 participants in Tel Aviv alone and 150 demonstrators and a score of policemen hurt.

It said the mace-swinging police were stoned by the crowd, at which they finally fired, and that mounted troops brandishing sabers eventually quelled the outbreak.

It said troops in battle kit helped police in halting a demonstration at Haifa.

DEAD REDS IN 'HEAPS' AT VIIPURI

By PETER De HEMMER GUDME
International News Service Special Correspondent

HELSINKI, March 6—Leaving "heaps of dead," immense Russian forces aided by airplanes, motor sledges, tanks and artillery were beaten back by Finnish reinforcements today as the Red army vainly tried to smash Viipuri in the jaws of two widening flanking movements.

"West of the Karelian isthmus Russian attacks over the ice of Viipuri bay were repulsed," a communique said, telling briefly of the bitter struggle.

"The Russians were supported by aircraft, tanks, sledges and artillery.

"Between Viipuri Bay and Vuoksen, the enemy attacked at many points, the most violent being in the region of Polakkarla.

LEAVE HEAPS OF DEAD

"All the attacks were repulsed and heaps of Russian dead were left in front of our positions."

Vuoksen (Vuoksenniska) is 38 miles north of Viipuri, and announcement of the battles between the two points indicates the Russians, swinging east of Viipuri, have turned back north and west, cutting the Viipuri-Vuoksen railroad.

"Dozens of tanks were destroyed," the Helsinki communique went on.

"The enemy air force bombed Mikkeli, Lahti and Kupoio. Forty civilians were killed and many wounded. Ten enemy airplanes were shot down. Our air force made numerous bombing flights."

BEAT REDS BACK

Although the Russians threw a full division of 20,000 men into the drive across Viipuri bay, Finnish reinforcements and air force kept them from gaining more than a precarious foothold at three points.

Towards the west every drive to reach the south coast was beaten off with heavy losses inflicted by the Finnish air force, which bombed and machine gunned the Russians from low heights.

As soon as the Finns saw them, coastal defenders opened up with a withering fire that mowed the Russians down by the hundreds and halted them.

At the same time heavy fighting raged on the outskirts of Viipuri itself as the Russian legions hammered ceaselessly against the ruined city.

U. S. Jury Pushes WPA Payroll Probe

The federal grand jury continued its investigation today of irregularities on WPA projects in Greater Boston. The hearing of evidence may continue until Friday.

Facing possible indictments are more than a dozen WPA employes and minor officials who allegedly defrauded the government by padding payrolls and falsifying records.

Britain Acts To Move Young To Safe Areas

LONDON, March 6 (AP)—Great Britain moved today to register children in her cities for the purpose of prompt dispersal in event of spring air raids.

Herbert Morrison, head of the London County Council, governing body of the kingdom's largest city, appealed to parents to register their children immediately.

Morrison said 400,000 to 500,000 children in Greater London would be eligible for registration.

Mass removals were made about the time war was declared Sept. 3, last, but there has been a drift of children back from safe areas.

"If word is given the children will move out of London, we hope, in the same orderly manner as last September," Morrison said.

"No child will be taken out of London unless its parents wish."

DENTIST DENIES GIRL'S STORY, SAYS SHE FELL

the suit, Dr. Winchester said, he had been out with her in 1935, at the old Showboat night club, and on a trip to Cape Cod.

Under questioning by his counsel, former Asst. Atty.-Gen. Louis H. Sawyer, the dentist testified that Miss Curley made an appointment with him, over the telephone, at noon on Saturday, March 6, 1937, to have a loosened filling replaced.

VISITED HIS OFFICE

A short time later she visited his Dorchester office and he treated her. In the office, he said, were his sister, as attendant, and another woman.

After the treatment, said the dentist, Miss Curley left but he was surprised to see her return at 2 p. m. She remained until 4 p. m. and they had four drinks in his office, he said, and it was proposed that they go to the Copley Plaza Hotel.

At the hotel, to which she drove his car because, he testified, he had been affected by the drinks in the office, they sat at the Merry-Go-Round bar.

"What did you have?" Atty. Sawyer asked.

"Scotch and soda," replied the dentist.

Q—Did Miss Curley have the same? A—Yes.

DINED TOGETHER

Q—Who suggested going to Cocoanut Grove? A—Miss Curley said there was a young man performer there that she wanted to see. So I drove her over there in my car. We stayed there about two hours and had dinner and we each had a cocktail before dinner.

Q—Where did you go after Cocoanut Grove? A—To the Copley Plaza.

Q—Did you drive Miss Curley to your sister's home in Dorchester and to your home before you went to the Copley Plaza? A—No, we went direct to the Copley Plaza.

Q—Who drove the car to Cocoanut Grove? A—I did, and I drove to the Copley Plaza.

"After we left the Grove," continued Dr. Winchester, "I suggested that we go back to the Copley Plaza and dance, as the showroom was larger than Cocoanut Grove. She consented to go.

DESCRIBES HIS ACTIONS

"We entered the hotel on the Dartmouth st. side and as we were walking down the corridor Miss Curley suddenly removed her hat, without saying anything, and began waving her arms.

"I didn't want her to create a scene and took her by the arm and led her into one of the elevators. We got off at the mezzanine floor. There she started crying. I said, 'What's the matter?' She said, 'I want to get out of here.'

"She made such a scene that the house detective came up and said, 'What's the matter, Doc?' I said, 'She's been drinking too much.' He said, 'That's too bad.'

"My plan in going to the mezzanine flour was to avoid a scene and to get her to go down with me the short staircase to the street and to my car, as I planned to take her home.

"FELL, THEN KICKED ME"

"When we got into the street there was a taxi near us. I knew the driver, Fred. Miss Curley started to get into it and tripped and fell. While I was trying to help her into the back seat, she started kicking me. I told her she would feel all right after she got home."

Q—Did you order a cab? A—Yes.

Q—Did you pay for it? A—No.

Q—What time was that? A—Ten-thirty.

Q—What did you do then? A—I returned to the Merry-Go-Round bar, had some more drinks and stayed there until midnight, and when I came out I was feeling pretty good and I met a friend named Sam in the corridor. I took his advice and registered at the desk and decided to go to bed. The house detective took me by the arm and led me to the elevator.

PAID IN ADVANCE

Q—Did you pay in advance when you registered? A—Yes, that's the rule whe nyou register without baggage.

Q—What did you do the next day, Sunday? A—I telephoned to Miss Curley and asked her how she felt. She said she had a splitting headache and that her ear was bothering her, and I told her that I was terribly sorry for what had happened and said that I would call on her and take her to an ear specialist.

Q—Did you see her brother Edward when you called at her home? A—Yes, I told him that I was sorry that Helen had injured herself but she fell in the taxicab. He hadn't heard anything about it.

Q—How did she appear when you saw her Sunday afternoon at her home? A—Her eyes were red and she looked as if she had had a hard night. She said she didn't remember what had happened the night before.

Q—Did you take her to Dr. Sheridan's office (in Bay State rd.)? A—Yes, I telephoned to a company that lets out chauffeurs and ordered a man to drive my car to my sister's home, where I had dinner. Then I went to Helen's home and took her to Dr. Sheridan's office.

Q—Did you have any drink on the way? A—Yes, we stopped at the Myles Standish cocktail bar and each had a cocktail. I told Helen it would do her good. Then we went to Dr. Sheridan's.

Q—Who was there when you called at Dr. Sheridan's? A—Mrs. Sheridan and Dr. Sheridan.

AT DR. SHERIDAN'S

Q—What did you say? A—I told Dr. Sheridan that Helen had tripped when she got into a taxi and injured her ear and I would like to have him look her over and examine her. I asked the doctor for a drink. I told him I felt kind of low. He told me that he wouldn't pour a drink for me, but he produced a bottle and I poured one for myself.

Q—Did Miss Curley mention to Dr. Sheridan while you were there that you had punched her? A—No. After his examination, Dr. Sheridan asked her what her occupation was. She crossed her legs and smiled and said:

"I'm a hosiery model." I remarked, "You aren't so good." She said, "You're not such a good dentist, either."

Q—Did you strike her? A—Yes, I slapped her like this (indicating a light slap).

Q—On what part of the body? A—On the cheek, like this. She started screaming and ran into a room and locked herself in and Mrs. Sheridan knocked on the door and asked her to open the door, but there was no answer.

Q—What became of Miss Curley? A—I don't know.

Q—What did you do? A—I went out, and the driver in my car drove me home.

Miss Curley testified yesterday that she leaped out a window of the Sheridan home, borrowed a dime for carfare from a man who was passing and went home.

Samaritan Act Leads to Cell

Efforts of Matthew Galvin, 28, of Bullard rd., Dedham, to be a Good Samaritan landed him in a cell today on a charge of contempt of court.

Galvin was called into Roxbury court to testify against William Patterson, of West Canton st., South End.

Patterson was charged with drunken driving and leaving the scene of an accident when on March 1, it is alleged his car struck Galvin's.

Galvin reported the accident to police and at the time is alleged to have said Patterson was under the influence of liquor. Today he refused to say Patterson was drunk when the accident occurred.

Judge Samuel Eisenstadt thereupon held him in contempt.

He sent Galvin to a cell and later set bail at $100. Both men's cases were continued to March 13.

Maxine Elliott Dies In French Chateau

Maxine Elliott, for that was the pseudonym that Jessica adopted at the suggestion of Dion Boucicault, one of the first of an endless series of theatrical people who saw in her grace and beauty the perfect answer to a producer's dream.

BORN IN '72 IN MAINE

The house is just as much a tribute to financial ability as to her histrionics. For Maxine was more than an actress—she was also impresario, astute business woman and social queen.

It was on Feb. 5, 1872, that Jessica Dermot came into this world in blustery, rock-ringed Rockland. She was the daughter of an old-line Yankee sailingman and in her girlhood and early convent years before New York began to know her glittering personality, she never dreamed that one day she would rule as queen of the Riviera, with kings, dukes and princes disporting themselves in her marble swimming pool.

She was only 16 when she first visited New York. But her already superb figure and almost austere beauty immediately attracted attention, and by 1890 she had a part in a Broadway show—"The Middleman," as famed in another age and time as "Tobacco Road" is today.

Then came appearances in various comedies and melodramas and in 1895 the trip to England in Augustin Daly's company which started her on the road to real fame.

FRIEND OF KING EDWARD

For there she met King Edward VII and there began a friendship between the monarch of the world's greatest empire and the daughter of a Yankee seafaring man which was to last until his death.

The press of the world had much to say of Maxine's friendship with the King and there were many stories of meetings at Marienbad and on the Riviera. There is even one famous legend that Edward VII wrote to Maxine to advise that he was coming to visit her unattended and unburdened by advisers or royal protocol.

Be that as it may, the friendship persisted, and after Edward VII died his grandson, who was to be for a brief while Edward VIII took up the role as friend and confidant of the American actress.

Until the present war brought a sharp change in affairs of everyone, this last Edward, with his wife the Duchess of Windsor, was a frequent visitor at the Chateau l'Horizon, carrying on the tradition that caused her villa to be dubbed "The House of Lords."

Maxine Elliott was first married to George McDermott, a New York lawyer. She divorced him and married Nat Goodwin, the actor, who died in 1919.

Nazi Liner, Running Blockade, Intercepted

ARUBA, Netherlands West Indies, March 6 (AP)—The 7369-ton German passenger liner Seattle, which sailed Monday night with a lumber cargo, was reported today to have been intercepted at sea presumably by allied warships.

Reports received here said the master of the Seattle had sent a message reporting his plight.

No mention was made of another German vessel, the 4097-ton Mimi Horn, which also sailed Monday night.

YOU CAN WIN $10,000.00!

EVEN though the Record-American Rebus contest is now in its fourth week, the opportunity to catch up and bring yourself right up to date is still yours. The Boston Record-American will be glad to send you all of the earlier puzzles free, so that you can bring yourself into the running for that $10,000.00 First Prize. The coupon in the lower right corner of this page brings them to you without charge or obligation—but it must be mailed promptly, as this offer is good for a limited time only.

SOLVE TODAY'S PUZZLE

Figure out what word is represented by Puzzle No. 21 at the lower left. This puzzle represents a word and you arrive at that word by adding and subtracting the given letters and the letters in the names of the objects pictured, as explained under the Sample Puzzle below.

Read the explanation and note that the letters you have left should spell out, in correct sequence and without any rearranging, the word the puzzle represents. Note also that that word should contain just as many letters as there are blank squares in the solution diagram after the equal sign.

SUBMIT ANSWERS IN WEEKLY SERIES

The puzzles of this contest are divided into weekly series of six (the six puzzles which appear from Monday through Saturday of each week constituting a series). Puzzles 1-6, 7-12 and 13-18 comprise the First, Second and Third Weeks' Series, respectively. Your answers should be submitted as promptly as possible in order to bring you up to date. This week's (the Fourth) Series is made up of Puzzles 19-24 and should be submitted any time before midnight, Saturday, March 16. Subsequent series should similarly be submitted within the week following its publication in the Record-American.

TEN CENTS IN COIN must be enclosed with each series of six answers in order to qualify your entry for a prize. In return for these remittances, contestants will receive a special set of original, entertaining Rebus Puzzles at the conclusion of the contest.

THE RULES

1—The Boston Record-American Rebus Game is open to all bona fide residents of the New England States, except employes of the Boston Record, the Boston American and the Sunday Advertiser, members of their families, any person acting as a proxy for another, and any person who has won $500 or more in any newspaper contest.

2—Beginning Monday, February 12th, 1940, a Rebus puzzle will be published each weekday in the Boston Record and the Boston American. Contestants may obtain their puzzles from either publication. The six puzzles published during each week will constitute a series. There will be fifteen weekly series. Answers for each week's series of puzzles should be brought or mailed to the Contest Editor, c/o The Boston Record-American Rebus Game. Answers for each week's series should be submitted within the week after that series appear in the Boston Record and the Boston American.

3—One hundred (100) prizes will be awarded by the Boston Record-American in accordance with the published schedule of prizes, to those 100 contestants who, by their solutions, achieve the 100 highest scores. No contestant may win more than one prize. Neatness does not count. Do not decorate your answers.

4—In case two or more contestants are tied for a certain prize, just what particular prize each contestant may be entitled to will be determined by submitting to each tied contestant a set of tie-breaking puzzles and if necessary a second, third, or fourth set of tie-breaking puzzles. Prizes will be awarded on the basis of the highest scores achieved by contestants in accordance with the instructions and scoring regulations covering the solution of such tie-breaking puzzles. At the discretion of the Boston Record and the Boston American, tied contestants may be required to work the tie-breaking puzzles without assistance, in the office of the Boston Record or the Boston American. In cases of final ties, duplicate prizes will be awarded.

5—In order to qualify for a prize, contestants are required to accompany each weekly series of answers with a remittance of 10c in coin. An individual file will be set up for each qualified contestant and each weekly set of answers duly filed therein. After the contest closes, each individual file will be duly judged.

To those contestants who complete the 15 weekly series of puzzles and who in all other ways conform to the rules of contest, The Boston Record-American will present a special series of fifteen original Rebus puzzles created by Harold Hart, foremost puzzle expert.

6—Any person, by entering this contest, agrees to abide by and accept as final the decision of the Boston Record and the Boston American on all matters affecting this contest, including among others the qualification of contestants, their disqualification at any time for any cause deemed necessary, the application of the rules, the judging of answers, the scoring of solutions and the interpretation of such instructions (governing individual puzzles) as may be announced by the contest officials. By entering this contest, participants agree that their answers become the property of the Boston Record and the Boston American and will not be returned.

7—Entries that are not signed by name will not be considered eligible for prizes nor will any claims to the ownership of such entries be recognized. Entries which are illegible will not be considered. The Boston Record and the Boston American will not be responsible for entries or communications lost or unduly delayed either from the contestant to the Boston Record-American Contest Editor or from the Boston Record-American Contest Editor to the Contestant.

FIRST PRIZE $10,000.00

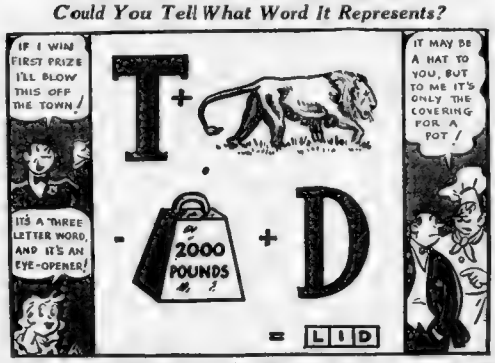
SECOND PRIZE $2,000.00

THIRD PRIZE $1,000.00

Fourth Prize	$500.00	Eighth Prize	$100.00
Fifth Prize	$350.00	Ninth Prize	$100.00
Sixth Prize	$250.00	Tenth Prize	$100.00
Seventh Prize	$150.00	Ninety Prizes at $5.00 each	$450.00

HERE'S A SAMPLE PUZZLE!

Could You Tell What Word It Represents?



IF I WIN FIRST PRIZE I'LL BLOW THIS OFF THE TOWN!
IT'S A THREE LETTER WORD, AND IT'S AN EYE-OPENER!
IT MAY BE A HAT TO YOU, BUT TO ME IT'S ONLY THE COVERING FOR A POT!
T +
- 2000 POUNDS +
= L I D

The way you solve this puzzle is to add and subtract, in accordance with the plus and minus signs, the letters given and the letters in the names of the objects pictured. For example, in this SAMPLE PUZZLE, you take the letter "T" and add LION—giving you T L I O N. From that you would cross out TON (which is represented by a weight marked 2000 pounds). That leaves you L I, to which you then add the letter "D". That, of course, gives you the word LID—which answer we've already sketched in because this is just a SAMPLE puzzle. If you read the "hints" supplied by the comic characters surrounding the puzzle, you'll see readily enough that LID is without question the correct solution. Get the idea?

MISTAKEN IDENTITY

Dear Editor—I have read all the stories about Mrs. James Roosevelt's divorce case and I am very puzzled. The hearing out West was postponed on Saturday because her brother, who was to appear as a witness, was ill. Again on Monday the hearing was postponed for the same reason. But Louella Parsons' column said: "Mrs. James Roosevelt made her first night club appearance in Hollywood Saturday at the Victor Hugo with her BROTHER and lawyer." Can you explain this? Dear Sir — Occasionally when I feel oofey-umphey, I hitch up the dogs and mush through Mrs. Roosevelt's column. Have you the second-sight to explain what she means when she writes they are not starving in Finland "for there food is one of the few things which they do not need?" It has recently been impressed upon all newspaper readers that the Finns are a superior race, but, ye gods, don't they even need to eat?

Mae West Film On Keith Screen

When Mae West in the frontier town of Lulu Bend it's the occasion for an immediate proposal of marriage.

It's all in the names of Flower Belle Lee (Mae West) and Cuthbert J. Twiddle (W. C. Fields), and the lily maiden when she sees bundles of money in Twiddle's carpetbag. The widowed blonde doesn't know that the money is phoney but a little later in the extravagant sequence.

All of this comes to pass in "My Little Chickadee" in which Universal arranges the combined production of the zany funny Fields and the very curvaceous West.

It sounds as if it should be fun for the customers at Keith's (Memorial, where the new Universal comedy western begins a week's engagement on Saturday.

Supporting these celebrated entertainers is an excellent company including Joseph Calleia, Dick Foran, Donald Meek, Gene Austin and Candy and Coco, Anne Nagel, Margaret Hamilton, Fuzzy Knight, Ruth Donnelly, Harlan Briggs, George Moran and Willard Robertson.

On the same bill will be "Honeymoon Deferred," starring Margaret Lindsay, Boston's recent and warmly welcomed visitor, with Edmund Lowe.

"SIEGE," RKO Pathe's history-making short subject special which shows what happened to the people of Warsaw, Poland, when aerial warfare destroyed their city, is to be an added feature.

Up to now, foreign censorship has made it impossible to obtain significant, vital films of the war in Europe. "Siege" is an exception to the rule, having been compiled from film never before seen and smuggled passed the censors. Julien Bryan, who photographed "Siege," tells its history in a quiet, dramatic, never-to-be-forgotten manner.

Cambridge Opening For 'The Chiselers'

"The Chiselers," a new play by Max Stahl, author of "Cradle-Snatchers," had its world premiere last night at the Forbes Street Theater, 2076 Massachusetts ave., N. Cambridge. Stahl, a member of Harvard's 47 Workshop has built his story around a family of small-time gamblers, who try to acquire their new lodger's winning sweepstakes ticket. Gorg Streett is the director

FLOWER BELLE LEE, glamorous, wise-cracking cabaret singer who causes excitement galore among the frontier boys is the Mae West role in "My Little Chickadee," Universal's comedy western co-starring W. C. Fields, marking the first time that Fields meets West on celluloid.

Cambridge Mother In Anti-War Drive

Mrs. Annie Morin of 229 Franklin st., Cambridge, went right into action today immediately after her appointment as district captain and organizer of the Legion of Mothers for the Cambridge area.

Seeking to become better acquainted with members and to discuss plans for a drive for new membership, Mrs. Morin said she would hold a penny sale at her home tomorrow night.

Mrs. Hannah M. Connors, regional director, will be on hand to greet the members and explain the purposes of the organization.

Mrs. Morin was named to the new post in recognition of her outstanding work in recruiting new members for the organization, whose aim is to keep American youth off foreign battlefields.

The Legion of Mothers is actuated solely by American patriotism. It is non-sectarian, non-partisan and non-political. It's big aim is to KEEP AMERICA OUT OF WAR.

The only requirement for membership is that women must be American citizens. You can become a member by merely signing a pledge card or sending in your name and address to Legion of Mothers, Big 228, Boston. Blank pledge cards in any number desired may be obtained by writing to the same address.

Joan Lee Holds 'Beauty Court'

Joan Lee, burlesque's "queen of swing" and Hollywood night-club pet, comes to the Globe on Friday at the head of the incoming traveling burlesque revue.

She is "a blue-eyed beauty who can burn holes in a starry sky and keep the fire departments busy on the California coast," according to her advance billing.

Just how factual or far-fetched this high-falutin' statement is, you can best decide for yourselves after catching up with her act Friday or the following nights.

Almost ecstatic is the press agent about Miss Lee's beauty court, namely "glamorous June Marshall, the Brazilian ecstacy, Vilma Jozsy and that gay siren of Vienna, Clee Canfield." (Please do not omit quotes Arthur.)

Participating in more than a dozen dance ensembles will be the 20 song-and-dance girls.

Louder and funnier will be the entertainment contribution of such established burlesque comics as Jack Greenman, Johnny D'Arca, Milton Frome, Ned Walsh, Arthur Ryan and Irving Benson.

Holding over a second week will be Jean Larue and her Singing Stars. Other vaudeville headliners will be the Prados and Periscopic Pauline.

The accompanying film program for the week, beginning Friday, will be feature photoplays, comedy shorts and newsreels, starting daily at 9 a. m.

Hollywood Paragraphs

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, March 6—I had a long talk with Claudette Colbert and she tells me that there's absolutely no truth in the reports that she and her husband, Dr. Joel Pressman, have separated.

I knew there was no truth in it without Claudette's telling me, for I've been with them too many times and seen them together to dream there was any unpleasantness. Claudette came home from Sun Valley happy as a lark over winning the Silver Run Trophy and breaking the woman's record in one minute and forty-two seconds.

She went to Sun Valley alone, but was joined there a few days later by her doctor-husband. She is now resting and getting ready to go into the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture "Boom Town," with Spencer Tracy and Clark Gable and Hedy Lamarr who has the other feminine lead.

HOLLYWOOD NOTES — Pat Ellis and Lon Reese, local hotel men, are keeping the telephones busy. Sayer Geist who last week was reported eloping with Jackie Coogan, at the Club Seventeen with John Hart; Pat Dane, who was Rudy Vallee's last month's flame, dining tete-a-tete with Allan Gordon at Sardi's; Ernst Lubitsch moves into the former Mary Pickford offices at United Artists; Walter Kane's first anniversary gift to his bride Lynn Bari, a square cut aquamarine ring surrounded by rubies and diamonds; Bob Hope hosted a house-warming for his seven pooches and their friends at his new place in the valley; Basil James, who brought home many winners at Santa Anita, met Ann Sheridan on the Warner lot a few days ago; Helen Gilfert is asking to have her maiden name restored. Her legal name is Bakaleinikoff, which is a mouthful in any language.

British War Film at Trans-Lux

'The Lion Has Wings," the Alexander Korda production which was filmed immediately following Chamberlain's historic declaration of England's war on Germany, opens today on Trans-Lux screen. It has been made with the complete approval and and co-operation of the British Royal Air Force and, of necessity, is as propagandistic as facts can be.

"The Lion Has Wings," is more or less the dramatic story of the new World War from last September to the present time as seen through the eyes of an official of the Royal Air Force, Ralph Richardson, and his pretty wife, Merle Oberon.

It is Miss Oberon who makes the film's ultimate plea, on behalf of England's wives and mothers, for a speedy and honorable end to this war for the right to freedom and justice and human dignity.

Others in the cast are June Duprez, Robert Douglas, Anthony Bushnell and Dorrick DeMarney.

On the same program will be "The Fatal Hour," latest in the Detective Wong series starring Boris Karloff with Marjorie Reynolds and Grant Withers.

MERLE OBERON is starred in "The Lion Has Wings."

'HIS GIRL FRIDAY' OPENS ON LOEW'S SCREENS TOMORROW

Rosalind Russell, Cary Grant Star

"The fastest-talking picture on record" is Hollywood's description of Howard Hawk's new Columbia picture "His Girl Friday," the Cary Grant and Rosalind Russell starred which opens tomorrow on Loew's State and Orpheum screens.

The romantic comedy drama, according to sound experts, hits a new speed pace for fast cross-fire talk.

Lodge Cunningham, in charge of the sound recording for the film, points out that the average person will not exceed 80 words a minute during ordinary conversation; that court reporters are considered competent to meet any emergency if they can transcribe 140 words a minute and that the late Floyd Gibbons, pioneer in the fast-talking news commentator field, barked 240 words a minute.

Grant, Miss Russell and Ralph Bellamy (who has a major featured role) maintain a pace between 175 and 250 words a minute in "His Girl Friday.'"

Hawks, commenting on this terrific pace, said:

"There is only one limit to the speed with which speech can be recorded. It must be articulate and easily understood by everyone listening."

Based on "The Front Page," the Ben Hecht-Charles MacArthur Broadway of 1928, "His Girl Friday" has been adapted for the screen by Charles Lederer.

The co-feature, "Convicted Woman," features Rochelle Hudson, Frieda Inescort, June Lang, Lois Lane, Glenn Ford and Iris Meredith.

RALPH BELLAMY (top), Rosalind Russell and Cary Grant share honors in film.

THE EFFORT of Congress to pass a bill specifying and clarifying the powers of bureaucratic agencies has been blocked, as International News Service reports, "by powerful Administration pressure."

The purpose of the bill was to prevent the assumption by such agencies as the Labor Board of powers not specifically given them by Congress—in other words, to KEEP THEM WITHIN THE LAW.

REP. SABATH
Reveals "Orders"

The disposition of these bureaucratic agencies, once created by Congress, is to thereafter MAKE THEIR OWN LAW and constitute themselves as enforcement agencies, as well as prosecutors, judges and juries.

An amazing shift from democracy to bureaucracy has resulted.

Chairman Sabath of the House Rules Committee made a remarkable admission in reporting regarding the bill that "I've been told not to bring it up on the floor."

"I know it for a fact," he is quoted as saying, "that President Roosevelt has given orders to these New Deal agencies to use good common horse sense in administering the new laws and stop trying to be prosecutors, juries, judges and executioners. That removes the necessity for the Logan-Walter Bill."

Is not that an admission that the bureaucratic agencies have NOT been using good common horse sense?

Isn't it an admission that they HAVE been trying to be prosecutors, juries, judges and executioners?

Since Congress never enacted laws empowering such acts, is it not therefore a self-evident fact that they have been UNLAWFUL acts?

Assuming President Roosevelt has given such orders as Chairman Sabath says he has, the conclusion is unavoidable that the unlawful acts must previously have been committed and countenanced. The President has now apparently changed his mind and attitude about them. But of course he might change his mind again.

To run the country that way, with the whims and vacillations of one man setting the course of government, is undiluted DICTATORSHIP.

It is not the function of the President any more than of the bureaucrats to say what the law is.

Only Congress can make laws under democracy.

And when bureaucratic agencies, with either the approval or acquiescence of the President, wield assumed or usurped, but not specifically granted powers, we do not then have democracy.

In spite of Mr. Sabath, there IS great necessity for the Logan-Walter Bill.

Congress has not been able to rely upon the President to prevent bureaucratic excesses.

How can it rely upon him to END them?

MISS FLORENCE KASKI, who lost her teaching position in Carver two years ago on the eve of her attainment of permanent tenure, is on her way to reinstatement.

Her victory is the result of Monday's municipal election, at which voters placed her champion on the school committee and removed her opponent.

Why Miss Kaski was refused a reappointment in the Spring of 1938 was never quite clear.

It was not surprising therefore that her case should have become a major political issue in Carver, overshadowing other local questions and eventually attracting the attention of the State and Nation.

One could find many adages to fit this story of a young woman's triumph over official opposition. There are dozens of apt sayings that would be appropriate.

But we prefer to attribute it all to the DEMOCRACY of the New England town meeting, where the majority still rules, has its voice heeded and its demands obeyed.

In no other form of government could a lone woman prove mightier than office-holders.

FLORENCE KASKI

Human Side of News -:- By EDWIN C. HILL

THERE MIGHT be a bit of problem in this juncture of the census year and the peak of the swing mania. Getting a jitterbug to stand still long enough to be counted might put the census taker on the spot. Maybe they'll just have to take a gallop poll, so to speak.

I had an idea that the jitterbugs were piping down—the name already seems rather quaint—but they tell me they're hopped up wilder than ever, and there is stiff competition for the title of "swing king," as if this being election year weren't excitement enough for a single fleeting 12-month.

Several magazines which clock the swing circuit gave the accolade to young Glenn Miller, taking critical account of an important instrument in his hand—his cash register, which is ringing up $20,000 a week since the start of his New York engagement several days ago.

THAT ISN'T HAY, as the Miller boy knew well when he was milking cows in his native Clarinda, Ia., for eight dollars a month and keep, which was the start of his musical career.

A bang-up milker going to work on a fresh clover-fed cow can work up a nice "Barn Yard Blues" if he has a good sense of rhythm and knows how to get the proper tempo and resonance out of the beat of the stream on the upper inside of the pail.

It is significant that all of our major and minor swing kings got going before the full ascendancy of the electric milking machine. Anyway, it was this bucolic symphony which formed Glenn Miller's swing genius, as the boy got rhythm milking 20 cows night and morning, and here he is a big town lad with pleated pants shoveling greenbacks instead of alfalfa.

JUST TO THROW a switch on the juvenile back-to-the-farm rush which such news might start, we report hastily that young Glenn Miller worked harder at his music than he ever did at his milking or hay shoveling.

In the University of Colorado, at Boulder, music was his sideline, but he withdrew before the completion of his course to make music his life work.

HARVESTS GREENBACKS INSTEAD OF HAY
"Swing King" Glenn Miller with His Slide Trombone

He was for several years a free lance trombonist and arranger for Dorsey, Red Nichols, Casa Loma, Ray Noble and others. It seems that he was away ahead of the parade. Much of his music was rejected because it was "too revolutionary." Three years ago he formed his own band. His first two bands failed to click, but this one came through. The parade has caught up with him.

In short, he worked hard to become a sound musician, and it was a lot more arduous than milking cows. Incidentally, the "juke" box helped a lot. This is the five-cents-a-shot music box at the roadside dance halls. Of the 12 to 24 discs in 300,000 of these music boxes, from two to six are usually Glenn Miller's.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt -:- -:- MY DAY

WASHINGTON, March 6—I left Miami, Florida, in good weather and flew into bad weather. They told me soon after taking off that, in all probability, we would not be able to land in Washington, D. C., but that Richmond, Va., seemed sure.

I sent word to the White House and asked them to send a car to Richmond for me. I fully expected I would have to sit in the airport and wait for it. Instead, we circled the airport, the captain found we could not land, and back we went to Raleigh, N. C.

I suppose to a great many people it made a real difference, but so far as I was concerned it was just inconvenient, and I was sorry that a car had been driven all the way to Richmond to meet me.

ANYTHING of this kind seems to draw the occupants of a plane together. Every seat was taken and everybody, of course, began to rearrange his plans. The man in front of me was pleased. He had a son at Duke University and this unexpected stop at Raleigh made a visit to Duke possible.

I was really sorry for Mr. and Mrs. Berlin, who had bought a four months old Pekingese puppy in Florida. She was the softest, most adorable little bundle of fur, but when no supper was forthcoming at the proper hour she behaved as badly as any hungry baby and yowled pitifully.

A couple across the aisle from me was reading "John Brown's Body," and I could not help but thinking that no matter what happened they had some satisfactory and engrossing literature.

THE FIRST LADY
Returning From Florida

The gentleman immediately across the aisle was on his way home from Mexico and was reading Stuart Chase's book on that country. He kept telling me what a wonderful place Mexico City is, and I told him how much I wanted to go there.

AS WE FLEW up the coast between Miami and Jacksonville, Fla., the shadows on the water were really too beautiful not to attract everyone's attention, no matter how interesting their books might be. I love flying over the water. The waves below stood out like so many little ostrich feathers in the breeze.

When there are extra sections in a flight, the several planes fly at different levels. At one point we could see our second section flying at 7000 feet, and looking like a great shining bird against the clouds above us.

I had two books with me and both were interesting. One of them, "Chinaberry Tree," is a tragic novel of the Negro people. I do not think it in any way a remarkable novel except for the tragedy which it portrays and which we, who happen to be of another race, so often forget.

COLUMNIST DEFENDS "SMEAR" VICTIM

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, March 6—In a recent attack on J. Edgar Hoover, a photo was used showing him wearing a paper hat at the Stork Club. That picture was taken four years ago on New Year's Eve. I was with him then and, as is his custom, he wouldn't touch a drop. He merely was celebrating, as was all America, the advent of a New Year . . . If Hoover is a "Stork Club Detective," then Jim Farley is a Monte Carlo Postmaster, Bill Bullitt a Monte Carlo Ambassador, Alfred M. Landon is a Jack and Charlie's politician, Frank Murphy an El Morocco jurist, Henry Morgenthau, Jr., an El Morocco Treasurer and Tom Girdler is a Versailles industrialist—because I've seen them at those places.

RUTH DRAPER

BILLY LIVINGSTON: John Barrymore will make an unheralded appearance on the "Society Girl" broadcast series, for which you and Elaine Barrie now work. Barrymore was scheduled to slip into the program, unannounced, last week—but was indisposed . . . WILL HAYS: Harold Clurman, who directed Odets' "Night Music," wrote a long article for the Sunday Times and attacked the critics for comparing Odets first with Chekhov and now with Saroyan. The Times cut one sentence from his piece! "Criticism of this type will end by sending everyone to Hollywood, where all writers are the same." . . . RUTH DRAPER: Jimmy Savo will tour the country in a one-man pantomimic show . . . NATL. CREDIT ASSN.: Paul Flato, the jeweler, whose customers include the best-known names in America, thought of a novel way of reminding his elegant customers that they still owe him some money . . . Flato, who is a Texan by birth, arranged to pose for Hal Phyfe, the photographer, and to have pictures taken showing him wearing a 10-gallon hat and armed with two pistols . . . The photo was to be captioned: "Pay Up—Or Else" . . . Flato's attorneys couldn't see the humor of this and persuaded him to drop the idea—because it might be considered Criminal Extortion.

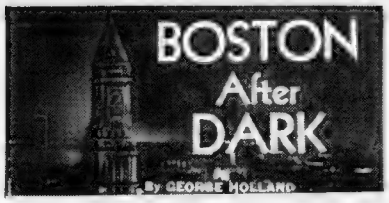
FERENC MOLNAR: Because Burgess Meredith, who will portray the title role in Vinton Freedley's production of your "Lilliom," is much shorter than Ingrid Bergman, Nat Karson will resort to a number of tricks in designing the sets and clothes, to make Meredith appear taller . . . He'll wear built-up heels, while Miss Bergman will be bare-footed. She'll wear a kerchief tied around her hair and tucked under her chin—while Meredith's clothes will have slanted pockets, and will be cut at an up angle to give the illusion of height. For the love scenes on the park bench, Karson has designed a special bench one side higher than the other.



EXCLUSIVE: Roosevelt and Farley of New York, and Curley of Massachusetts have scheduled a huddle for sometime today . . . Except that part of the conversation undoubtedly will turn on the impending election, your guess is as good as ours as to what precisely the purpose of the conference is . . . Locally, meantime, Chairman William H. Burke of the Democratic State Committee proposed a compromise with the leaders of the "rebel" slate in the 10th Congressional District . . . The proposed compromise offered the "rebels" two places for delegates named by them . . . It was scorned.

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY: Cobina Wright's vocal talent is not employed in "Worth A Million," which, after scanning the odes of the drama critics, appears to be a play that could use not only songs but dances . . . And another playwright . . . Cobina and her lovely mother, Sigrid Lassen, a comely daughter of an unspellable Princess, Police Commissioner Timilty, Mrs. William Danforth and her chum, Mrs. Malcolm Bradley French, and Jerry O'Leary, chum to the Commish, watched the debut of the balky hobby horse line at the Mayfair.

NONE OF THE DIGNITARIES or celebrities was a volunteer to mount one of the indoor horses . . . Yet each is a good rider—including the Commissioner . . . The Mayfair's horse routine is the most novel scheme brought out lately in the coast-to-coast attempt to induce "audience participation" . . . It was Olsen and Johnson's comical "Hellzapoppin'" which proved that audiences are disposed toward being a collective "life of the party."

FORMER MAYOR MAL NICHOLS will run for mayor with an "anti-housing" plank as his chief dependence . . . Another prominent Republican, former City Councilor George Roberts of the so-called "Charlie Innes ward," is a sure candidate for attorney-general . . . Ed Keenan and Norma Bertozzi, the Boston kids who have won an attic-load of cups in ballroom dance competition, will get their chance at the Cocoanut Grove tomorrow to measure their amateur talents against the pro variety . . . If their exhibition of the "Boston Collegiate"—the dance they dance in the ballrooms—is a click, there's a new name for the Grove lights—Keenan and Bertozzi.

WHAT IS HOLDING UP the Supreme Court's decision of the Curley-Graves case? They are wondering along Barristers Row . . . Uncle Sam is ready to lash out against a "morning after" panacea. The charges are very serious . . . Chief Marshal Edward J. "Knocko" McCormack's ability as an organizer is so widely-known that, stripped of all comedy, the Evacuation Day-St. Patrick's Day parade in South Boston March 16 is expected to be the most complete in the history of the event . . . "Knocko's" pals of Company B., 101st Artillery, will march with its complement nearest to unanimity since the day of the YD home-coming parade in 1919.

NO SPANKING FOR LANA TURNER

By Louella O. Parsons

Lana Turner

HOLLYWOOD, March 6—Rumors that Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer would discipline Lana Turner after her sudden elopement and marriage to Arthur Shaw is apparently unfounded. Talk was at the time their promising glamour girl married that she would be dropped like a hot potato. Just Hollywood gossip. Lana will be co-starred with Lew Ayres in "To Own the World," a tragic story, and she will have a chance to really emote.

She was co-starred with Lew Ayres once before in a "Dr. Kildare" picture and M-G-M may continue to team them, believing that pairing young stars is good box office.

PHYLLIS BROOKS

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD: The Sam Hoffensteins may reconcile. He has been telephoning her every day; Errol Flynn received a bad cut dueling in "Sea Hawk." He and Lili Damita are building a mansion atop the hill near Pickfair; Michael Kanin, brother of Garson, and Fay Mitchell in the RKO story department, will announce their intention to wed; Harry Ritz and his new flame, Betty Heath, an item at the Beverly Tropics; Dorothy Di Frasso, Randolph Scott, Cary Grant—and believe it or not, Phyllis Brooks, a foursome dining at Perino's; Ciro's packed to the doors with many of the film colony dancing there—and on Monday night, too. Among them were Norma Shearer and George Raft, Ronald Colman and his wife, the Spencer Tracys, Pat Paterson and Charles Boyer—all of them coming in from the "Too Many Husbands" preview.

GLORIA DICKSON today said that she would seek her freedom from Perc Westmore. Gloria felt aggrieved over Perc's confirmation of the story that she was lost. I don't think she should have for he was greatly worried and she could easily have told him her whereabouts. Gloria checked in at Paramount for one of the roles in (coincidence) "I Want a Divorce."

THOMAS MITCHELL is on his way to New York for a holiday, happy as a lark over receiving the Academy award for the best male supporting role. When he comes back he'll get another break with John Ford in "The Long Voyage Home." John Wayne, who was also in "Stagecoach," will be teamed with Mitchell and the two of them will play sailors. You can save your money right now to see that picture for, take it from me, it will be good.

TWO-MINUTE STORY

THE LONESOME rattle of a fast moving freight split the night air. Rain slanted down, chilling to the bone the furtive figure that stumbled across gleaming tracks, body bent against the wind. Water squirted from tattered shoes, and his flimsy sweater and dungarees were dripping.

Ten minutes later he entered an all night hamburger tower on the edge of the town.

The attendant was disinterested as he pushed the food across the counter. Down and out drifters were common in the place; but as the stranger started to eat, the attendant's expression changed to one of fear and recognition.

QUIETLY, he walked into the back room. He dialed the phone with a trembling hand, his excited eyes fixed on the paper on the shelf before him. It was a flash extra. The headlines screamed . . . "Condemned Killer Escapes"—Frank Husting Cheats Chair on Eve of Execution. The picture beneath was that of the man out at the counter.

Five minutes later, the door opened. Three policemen stood there — guns leveled. The stranger recoiled. His sweeping glance took in the attendant at the end of the . . . counter—paper in hand—the uniforms. Comprehension flicked across his face. Throat quivering, he tried to speak, while his right hand reached inside his sweater.

Revolvers roared, and a sagging figure completed the movement started in Life. An outstretched right hand clutched a little, black case.

THE police sergeant snapped open the lid and stared at the gold emblem, and read—"Congressional Medal of Honor—For Conspicuous Bravery—Gallantry Beyond the Call of Duty."

He fixed blurred eyes on the two pictures beneath the medal, read the inscriptions — Frank — Peter. He looked quickly at the name on the medal and then at the picture in the newspaper. The words strangled him as he said:—"His Twin Brother."

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

AT ONE TIME, in my younger years, I was an extremely proficient liar. The thing seemed to come natural to me.

In the first place, nature had endowed me with that slightly idiotic look which made the other fellow sure that I hadn't sense enough to tell anything but the truth. In addition to that, I had a simple, trusting manner when listening to other liars which automatically seemed to bar me from the union. Surely no gal who swallowed everything so easily could hope to pull a swift one herself.

And so I was able, with great ease, to develop a fibbing technique that was a honey!

LIES, I found, served countless purposes. Primarily, of course, they were swell accident insurance. You could wiggle out of the most embarrassing scrapes—duck the most humiliating retribution—by a few well-timed whoppers. And not really Do Anyone a Mite of Harm.

Lies were also handy in "rassling" with a situation which I disliked even more than blame—boredom. Being a young woman of lively tastes, I frequently found life a very dull affair. Search as one might, there was Simply Nothing Doing. But a good fibber with a smitch of imagination could always Start Something.

Most alluring advantage of all—if you didn't relish obscurity, you could always achieve the center of the stage by a dramatic lie. Pretending to be something you weren't. The ughest duckling, the sappiest squab, could be transformed into a Bird of Paradise by this seemingly harmless process.

SO—having made these pleasing discoveries—I proceeded to follow them up. And became one of America's better Munchausens. It was a grand racket! And yet, years and years ago, I cut it out. Quit lying and went on to a 100 per cent truth basis.

Why? I discovered that I was tricking the person on earth I didn't want to trick—I was tricking myself.

There is an old saying that "you can't fool yourself," and most of us fondly believe that this is so. But nothing could be farther from the truth. Actually you can fool yourself quicker, easier and worse than anyone else. And the reason for this is—you want to fool yourself.

Salads Can Be 'Hearty' Food

By MARTHA LEE

WHEN GRANDMOTHER took to serving salads frequently she reckoned without grandfather. "Rabbit food," "newfangled foolishness," he snorted fiercely when faced with a salad.

And grandmother would reply comfortably, "Now, Pa, don't you be contrary — that salad tastes good." Under her gentle urge, grandfather found himself eating more and more salads and eventually, though he won't admit it, with actual enjoyment.

Nowadays, salads are not a matter of course on our tables we forget it is only within the past few years that such has been the case. Green salads are among the health protective foods. All green salads are good. During cold weather, however, we make our salads more substantial.

The hearty winter vegetables, either cooked or raw, form colorful, zestful salads:

MACEDOINE SALAD

1 cup cooked diced carrots
1 cup cooked lima beans
1 cup cooked peas
1 small cooked cauliflower

Cover carrots, lima beans, peas and cauliflower which has been separated into small pieces, with French dressing and let stand in refrigerator to chill thoroughly. When ready to serve, place on crisp leaves of lettuce and garnish with rings of green pepper or radish roses. If each vegetable is marinated separately they may be served in individual nests, making a very attractive service. Makes 6 servings.

WINTER VEGETABLE SALAD BOWL

2 cups cooked cauliflower
1 cup cooked string beans
1 cup cooked beets
6 cooked carrots (cut into fourths lengthwise)
½ head lettuce

Arrange lettuce in a salad bowl. Arrange the cooked cauliflower, string beans and beets in separate piles. Then place 6 to 8 long pieces of carrot between each pile of vegetables. Chill ½ hour in the refrigerator and serve with tomato-French dressing. Makes 5 to 6 servings.

Tomato-French dressing is a non-separating version of French dressing.

TOMATO-FRENCH DRESSING

1 tbsp. dry mustard
1 tsp. salt
3 tbsp. sugar
⅛ tsp. pepper
1 tbsp. grated onion
1 cup oil (olive or salad)
⅓ cup vinegar
½ can condensed tomato soup

Combine the dry ingredients and mix in the grated onion. Blend in the oil and let stand for 10 to 15 minutes. Add vinegar and tomato soup. Beat well until the dressing mixture is thick and well blended. Makes about 2½ cups of dressing.

Meat added to a salad changes it to a main course dish. When this type of salad is served, a bowl of hot soup starts the meal off with a fine flourish.

COMBINATION SALAD WITH FRANKFURTERS

5 frankfurters
1 can condensed vegetable soup
2 cups al redded cabbage
4 tbsp. salad dressing or mayonnaise

Drop the frankfurters into boiling water and boil 5 to 10 minutes. Cool and slice crosswise. Combine frankfurters, vegetable soup, cabbage and salad dressing. Chill 1 hour and serve on lettuce, watercress or chickory. Makes 3 or 4 servings.

RUSSIAN SALAD

Combine all sorts of cooked vegetables, cut neatly in small dice, balls, cubes, no matter how many sorts, in equal proportion. Toss vegetables in a French dressing. Shreds of any cold game, fowl, smoked salmon, lobster, anchovy, olives, hard cooked eggs, parsley, lettuce, or celery tops, with fancy stars of beetroot may be employed for producing a pretty garnish effect.

HEARTY winter vegetables, either cooked or raw, and sometimes combined with meat, fish and fowl, make colorful, zestful salads.

Style Tips From Hollywood

Since so many of our fashions are originated in Hollywood, we thought we might pass along somefashion notes from the screen capital . . . particularly since screen stars have finally learned to wear clothes that are really smart and not just spectacular.

Chamois promises to be the most popular leather for this season . . . not withstanding the intriguing suede things . . . as witness Anna Neagle's wool suit of shamrock green with pointed dickey and heart shaped lapels of natural chamois, with the same leather trimming her matching green sports hat . . .

Mary Howard appeared in a dinner dress, at a recent function, of wine jersey in the new ankle length . . . the shorter evening dress persists . . . the dress had black shirring at the waist, with a wine and paisley top.

Carole Lombard . . . always away ahead and invariably smart . . . put the seal of approval on the new Persian slacks . . . with an outfit whose trousers are gathered tight at the ankle, and whose skirt is full of sleeve. Around the waist is a wide scarf with tasseled ends . . . grand for a hostess costume.

Birthday Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE
Wednesday, March 6

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY—You of this birthdate are good-natured, amiable; very unhappy if in the midst of dissension or wrangling. You possess deep-rooted talents that must be properly developed and encouraged (encouragement from the right source is very important). Literature, art, social service work are suited to your nature and ability. You may be over-indulgent of loved ones. Sharpen your powers of penetration and discrimination.

LUCKY NUMBER—Today's lucky number is 33.

LUCKY COLOR—Today's lucky color is turquoise blue.

Manners

Don't Appear Anxious

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I met a very nice chap at a winter resort during the past weekend. When he was leaving he said that he would get in touch with me in the city.

Would it be proper for me to send him a greeting-card before I hear from him? H.

I suggest that you wait for this young man to make the first move to continue this friendship. You have given him this privilege of getting in touch with you when he returns to the city, and undoubtedly he won't need a reminder. Better for you not to appear too anxious, even if you aren't especially anxious.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I would like to have some advice as to what to do after receiving some "get well" cards while in the hospital. Should I thank the friends personally, or send notes of thanks? S.

If, fairly soon after you have received these cards, these well-wishing friends come to see you or you meet them, you will have the proper opportunity of thanking them personally. But if this opportunity does not occur within a reasonable length of time, you should write little notes of thanks for this kind attention. But if you are well enough, it's of course better to write these appreciative notes as soon as you can.

PEANUT CLUSTERS

(Tested by Good Housekeeping Institute)

Use Institute-approved measuring cups and spoons. Measure level.

INGREDIENTS

½ lb. semisweet chocolate
½ c. sweetened condensed milk
1 c. whole, unsalted peanuts

METHOD OF PREPARATION

Melt chocolate in top of double boiler over hot water. Remove from heat and add condensed milk and peanuts, stirring until mixed. As soon as mixture thickens, drop from a teaspoon on a greased baking sheet or plate to cool. Chill thoroughly in refrigerator. Makes about 36. If desired, seedless raisins may be substituted for peanuts.

SERVE for a children's party with milk and chicken sandwiches.

You Can Be Beautiful

A Makeup for Every Type

By ARLINE GOULD

The more we read of the international news dispatches, the more we say to ourselves: "What a wonderful country we live in!"

Which sounds like a kind of weird beginning for a beauty story . . . but however strange it sounds, we stick to it. Because we have talked to world famous people, especially men, from every country in the world, and they always say: "The most beautiful women in the universe are the women of the United States!"

And looking around, on Tremont and Boylston streets, at the Opera, at the smart cocktail bars, in the business offices, we find svelte, smartly dressed girls and women who prove the contention.

We can thank the American beauty experts who have bullied and harried us into taking care of our skin and eating salads instead of pie and ice cream; who have had faith enough in their products to spend thousands of dollars on laboratories where they perfected creams and lotions to combat the ageing effects of the dust and dryness and general wearing qualities of modern life.

And so it warmed our hearts when an American beauty firm announced that they had perfected the "Americans" make-up . . . and that it was not one, but three, different types of glamour.

One of the most delightful firms, which appeals particularly to the young crowd, has divided us into types . . . or rather into moods, for we can be three different types with the right changes of mood and makeup.

The "Miss Manhattan," for instance, is a smart, sophisticated face-do especially available for life after 5 p. m. . . . for cocktail parties, theater dates, and night spots. Their formula for this is a startlingly light powder over a blood tone rouge. Lipstick a bright arresting motif on a transparent complexion. Subtle use of not too vivid eyeshadow and fairly heavy on the mascara. This the "Miss Manhattan."

But their "Southern Belle" is equally coquettish, but different. This ensemble imparts a fresh, charming, feminine look. It has a soft, creamy complexion tint . . . warm, clear powder . . . Dresden-pink rouge . . . brows lengthened and lightly darkened to frame eyes made larger by soft colored eyeshadow. This is seductive in a lady-like way.

Thirdly, they have the "Girl of the West" make-up, created especially for the sportsgirl who requires a face-do that can stand the strenuous wear and tear of the elements. This has: No powder to blow away . . . merely a suspicion of rouge to accentuate the healthy glow whipped by outdoor breezes . . . no make-up for the eyes . . . but of course to wear it you have to keep your skin in perfect condition.

In a Boston department store salon, you will get a free "face-do" in any one of the three types if you call Arline Gould and ask her where; or write her, enclosing a stamped and self-addressed envelope. If you phone, do so weekdays except Saturdays, before five.

MEMBERS of Harvard's Hasty Pudding Club who have been chosen to play the roles of dainty chorines in the club's forthcoming musical revue "Assorted Nuts," took a lesson in glamour from Cobina Wright, Jr., yesterday . . .

Cobina, society songstress, making her Beantown stage debut in "Worth a Million" at the Wilbur, was guest of honor at a cocktail party at the Pudding . . . and while she chatted and joked with the boys the future chorines made mental notes of how to achieve feminine allure . . .

In a few weeks time, with the aid of golden wigs, silken hose and slinky satin gowns, such stalwart males as Bob Bacon and Bob Coleman will impersonate ravishing glamour girls in two of the feminine leads of the show . . . They were both on hand yesterday to join in singing a few songs to give Cobina an impromptu preview of what the show's all about . . . Incidentally, we shudder to think of the implications in the plot, which begins in a newspaper office and ends in a nuthouse! . . .

Pete Rollins Repeats

LARGELY responsible for the show's hit tunes is Pete Rollins whose talent for composing catchy songs won him considerable acclaim last year . . . Collaborating with him are Franklin Tyler, whose nice tenor voice will be heard in several numbers, Phil Kadison and David Burt . . .

Lyric writers include both Pete and Franklin in addition to Bob Bacon, Bayard Clark, W. R. Bowie and Edward C. K. Read . . . Arthur Pierson, the producer, and William Holbrook, dance director, are putting the boys through their paces at daily rehearsals in preparation for the gala opening at graduates' night, March 25 . . .

Mrs. William Brace Pratt, "chaperone" at yesterday's party, provided a lot of good natured amusement when she took an impromptu waltz lesson from Bill Holbrook while Phil Kadison strummed a Viennese tune on the piano . . .

THE MINE AND THE GIRL

A Complete Short Story Daily on This Page

By FLOYD ANDERSON

THE old prospector, gnarled and bent from years of breaking rock, and the young mining engineer, his clothes as new as today's newspaper, stood at the top of the hill, and looked down at the ramshackle buildings below them. Jack Barry's face lighted up as his eye spotted the old stamp mill, the old stock pile, and other evidences of mining.

"Now that looks like a mine!" he exclaimed.

Stampede Pete grunted "Did ya ever hear that looks was deceiving?"

Barry grinned. "Isn't it a mine?" he asked. "It certainly looks like one."

Stampede Pete grunted again to express his disapproval. "I don't understand you," he said. "You look like a young squirt out of college, but you know a lot about mines. You dress like you graduated from mining school last week, but you took a fast drop in the cages up in Montana like an old timer.

"Maybe you're fooling me—maybe you're only fooling yourself. I don't know what you're up to, but I'll string along and try to keep you from losing your money."

"Why, Pete," said Barry, "I don't intend to lose my money."

"If you think that's a mine down there" Pete tossed his hand in the direction of the old buildings, "and if you act on your think, you'll lose money."

"Isn't it a mine?" asked Barry.

"Sure it's a mine, after a fashion. The owners make about $10,000 a year on it without turning a hand."

"What's the story?" Barry smiled. "There's something behind this."

"It's just an old story," said Stampede Pete. "About every year they get some bright young mining engineer to buy that mine. He pays $10,000 down and the rest in easy payments. And then he goes broke, the mine comes back to them, and they wait for another sucker."

Suddenly Barry's eyes lighted up. "I'll like to go down and see it anyway," he said.

STRANGERS, BEWARE!

Stampede Pete did not turn around. "That girl you're looking at is Joan Mouver," he said. "I can tell by the light in your eye. She's the prettiest girl in these mountains. And she don't like strangers. But I'll introduce you to her."

Half an hour later, Barry and Pete were making themselves at home with the Mouvers, while Bill Mouver was describing the mine. "I just uncovered the prettiest piece of quartz you ever seen," he said. "Just spotted with pieces of pure gold. Prettiest piece I ever saw."

Stampede Pete grunted. But Barry seemed quite interested. "How old is this mine, Mr. Mouver?" he asked.

"Dates back to the 49'ers," said Mouver. "That old stamp mill is just about the oldest in California, I guess. Of course it hasn't been used for years—never had the money to fix it up myself. We've just done the best we could, dug out a little gold and then take it to the mill in town and sell it.

The Cast of Characters in 'The Mine and the Girl'

JACK BARRY, a young mining engineer, STAMPEDE PETE, an old miner.

JOAN MOUVER, daughter of BILL MOUVER, who owns the old mine.

"But if a live-wire got in here," he continued, "and was willing to spend a little money, he could make a nice little mine out of this."

"Seems odd," said Stampede Pete, "that no one has took it up before now of it is good as you say."

Bill Mouver laughed. "Now, Pete, don't go running this down until you know. Of course, a couple fellows had bad luck with it, but it just so happens they didn't stick to it long enough.

"Now take for instance that last fellow who had it—that Easterner. He worked it for a while and then quit. We put a few more rounds into the tunnel he was working on, and got that pretty piece of quartz I was telling you about. Just a minute—I'll get it."

The sample was a beautiful one, with specks of gold sprinkled through it. But Stampede Pete still grunted. He was not convinced.

"Pete," said Jack Barry, "Miss Mouver is going to show me around the valley. You don't seem to be convinced about the sample. Suppose you look the property over carefully to see what you can find."

"We got a box of dynamite that hasn't been opened yet," said Mouver, "so you don't need to be afraid of it being salted—if you are."

"We're not worried about that, Mr. Mouver," assured Barry. But all Pete did was to grunt again, with doubt riding the length of it.

A REAL MAN

Jack's afternoon with Joan Mouver was a most pleasant one, and she, too, seemed to enjoy it. For Jack Barry was a real man, almost a handsome man, but with a certain ruggedness that cast aside the adjective. And Joan was pretty to look at, pleasant to be with, and entertaining as well.

Jack was particularly interested in the history of the valley, and Joan knew it all—its discovery shortly after the gold rush in 1849, its succession of owners, with the mine always showing a little gold but with no one seeming to be able to make a mine out of it. It remained a prospective mine, but never an operating one.

"I think I'm going to make a deal with your father," said Jack, "and take over the mine."

"Don't sign that, Dad," said Joan. "Don't sign it."

Joan looked at him steadily for a moment. "You'll have an engineer look it over?" she asked slowly.

"I'm an engineer," he said, "but I'm not even going to examine it myself."

"Then you'll rely on what Stampede Pete says about it?"

"Pete's already told me about it," said Barry.

"You mean—that my father makes a living—out of selling it?"

He nodded his head.

"And you're still going to buy it?"

"Yes."

"Why?"

"I've fallen in love with it. I want it as badly as I've wanted anything in my life. But that isn't all—"

Joan stopped him. "I think that's all I want to hear—now." Their trip back to the mine was in silence, and the minute they arrived she left him with a cool "good-by."

Stampede Pete found Jack Barry sitting in the front of the old building. "What did you find?" asked Pete.

"Some very nice samples of gold," said Stampede Pete. "In the dynamite. Mouver had salted the sticks of dynamite with gold, so that when I did any blasting to get samples, the rock would be salted with the gold. But I've done a bit of that myself and he wasn't careful enough."

"But how about that sample he showed us?" Barry asked.

"It's like this," said Pete. "Mouver's got a shotgun, but he don't go hunting. Nobody here likes to hunt. But he's got a shotgun and he uses it—in the tunnel.

"He takes a shell, loads it with some free gold, and then takes the shotgun into the tunnel and shoots the gold into the rock. That's how you get a sample like that."

"Good work, Pete," said Barry. "But still I think I'll make a deal with him."

Pete grunted. "I thought so. It's the girl—but don't say I didn't warn you—"

"Excuse me," said Barry, "there's Mouver and I want to talk to him."

Pete grunted, swore and then went in search of Joan Mouver. Jack Barry was too nice a man to go bust on a shell game like this, and he was going to stop it—and he knew Joan Mouver would help him.

"DON'T SIGN THAT!"

Barry knew what Pete had in mind, but he also knew what he wanted to do. He went after Mouver and quickly went to his business, and agreed without argument or discussion on the terms. Barry quickly drew a memorandum agreement for the purchase of the property, and just as he handed the pen to Mouver, Pete and Joan entered the room.

"Don't sign that, Dad," said Joan. "Don't sign it."

"Why not, Joan?" asked her father. "He's well over 21 and seems to know his mind."

Go ahead and sign," said Joan Barry. She doesn't know what she is talking about."

Mouver signed, Jack Barry signed, and then pulled a certified check from his wallet and endorsed it over to Mouver. "There's the ten thousand dollar down payment and according to our agreement $5000 is due in three months, and $500 each three months thereafter for two more installments until $25,000 is paid, and then the mine belongs to me, or to whomever I assign it."

Right," said Mouver, as he picked up the check. And I must say you do work fast. That's the quickest piece of business I've ever seen."

And the silliest!" Joan's eyes flashed as she stood in front of Jack Barry. I don't know what you're thinking about, buying a mine that you know nothing about. But I can tell you this—I don't go with the mine!" And her right hand swung up and slapped him hard on the cheek! And the door banged behind her, once. And twice, as Jack Barry rushed after her.

He caught up with her under a huge tree by the little creek. He grabbed her by the shoulders and swung her around.

"Now listen to me," he commanded. "You're being silly!"

"I—silly?"

"Yes, silly. Now listen a minute—just a minute. I make quick decisions because that's my business. I needed this mine and so I bought it. I bought it quick because if your father knew why I wanted it he wouldn't have sold it."

"What do you mean?" she demanded.

"I'm a mining engineer, but I don't practice that profession. I'm a director, a movie director. We're shooting a picture of the '49'ers and we needed an old mine as a setting—and this is ideal for that. So it's cheaper to buy and use it for other movies than to rent it—and so, John Barry Grant, the director, becomes Jack Barry, the mining engineer. Simple, isn't it?"

"Yes," she said slowly, "and so am I. Pete said you were buying the mine just to impress me—he said that you had fallen for me—yes, I was simple." She turned and started to walk back toward the house.

He stopped her again, turned her around, and tenderly turned her face up toward him. "That wasn't simple," he said. "That was serious. Pete was right—I had. I make quick decisions—but maybe you don't. You've just met me—"

She smiled up at him. "Maybe the quick decision habit is catching—for I seem to have caught it."

THE END.

Approves Shoe Wage Scale

The New England Shoe and Leather Association has approved the recommendations of the Shoe Industry Committee that a minimum wage of 35 cents be ordered without any wage classifications or differentials . . .

THE ATTITUDE . . . Of this very important group was made known today by Secretary Maxwell Field . . . Who, together with Arthur E. Whittemore, association counsel, attended the hearing held yesterday by Wage-Hour Administrator Philip Fleming . . . The purpose of the hearing before Fleming was to take oral arguments on the record of evidence adduced from the public hearing last December . . . It marked the conclusion of the association's important work in efforts to secure a reasonable and fair wage . . . Field pointed out the recommendations approved resulted from the appointment a year ago this month of a 27-member shoe industry committee . . . One equally representative of employers, labor and the public . . . The commissioner will now either accept or reject them . . . Without modification . . . Proposed effective date is the beginning of the season following acceptance . . . Text date is May 15.

LITERAL . . . Pillars of recovery are the columns shown on the accompanying chart . . . Since they represent the monthly total of building contracts awarded . . . When they tower into the top brackets of the graph scale recovery in general is strong and vigorous . . . Conversely when they cower in the bottom brackets there can be no recovery since individuals fear to spend for homes and industry does not desire new plant . . . 1940 is shown to have started modestly . . . Somewhat better than 1938 but not as good as 1939 . . . However, the construction on which critics' eyes are glued, residential building represented by the solid black sections, is doing well . . . In January a good increase was shown over comparable 1938 figures . . . And the total was barely short of January 1939.

ANSWERING . . . "How's business" queries is simple . . . It is a lot better than a lot of people want to admit . . . Here's proof . . . Car loadings for last week increased substantially over the same week a year ago and quite a bit over the previous week . . . That is a forecast to be checked when the official figures are released . . . Facts are . . . A T & T gained 177,600 phones in the first two months of the year . . . New England Telephone accounted for 6602 of these . . . Contrary to general business reports the metal working industry is booming . . . Many branches have not shown any decline . . . And are headed for spring at top speed . . . Automobile surveys indicate a 440,000 unit output for March . . . Steel orders of important size are showing up.

THE MARKET . . . Is developing along lines described in our recent short thesis on trading and investment influences . . . How much longer traders will watch investors prove the line of least resistance is upward is the question . . . One of these days when investors refuse to follow values higher traders will and prices will keep moving upward . . . And volume may not be a characteristic of the rise for a time . . . Turnover will quicken but not necessarily race to high levels . . . Simply because offerings thin out so markedly now that prices can do quite a bit of travelling before running into sizable blocks of stock . . .

NOTEBOOK . . . We may be a shade premature but the present looks like a good time for the action noted above to take place . . . particularly if Chrysler keeps acting well . . . For, as readers know, motors are this column's chosen group for leadership . . . When they go the market will follow . . . Fansteel Metallurgical 1940 earnings estimates call for $2.50 a share . . . Placing the stock in a most favorable light on the basis of current price . . . Jackson & Curtis, members of the New York Exchange, have prepared a commission chart . . . It gives the commission rates charged non-members, data on trading units, taxes, minimum charges and delivery schedules.

Stocks Sweep Higher on Broad Front

NEW YORK, March 6 (AP)—Steels and motors, gaining around a point on fairly large purchases, formed the spearhead of an advancing market today.

Aircraft, metals, miscellaneous industries, and rails joined the parade later on.

Such leaders as Glenn-Martin, Bendix and American Telephone reached new highs for the year.

Some sources professed to see impetus for the rise, which began yesterday, stemming from the last seven weeks of market dullness. In that period, it was asserted, prices proved themselves resistant against sell-offs occasioned by declining industrial indices.

Many bonds rose. Commodities were irregular. Foreign markets closed slightly off after earlier firmness.

Among the leaders in a rising curb were Niles-Bement-Pond, Standard Oil of Ohio, Sherwin Williams, Aluminum Co. of America, and American Cyanamid 'B'.

SAYS CONNOLLY ASKED FOR MONEY

Asst. Dist. Atty. Frederick T. Doyle, McCarthy testified he personally collected a total of $1993 from a list of 19 of Conolly's office employes.

He said he made the collections on a bi-monthly basis and kept a record of them in a green and red account book, which was offered in evidence.

Employes who fell behind in their contributions were listed in red ink, McCarthy testified.

He said he began making the collections about June 1, 1938, after a conversation with Connolly, and continued them to June, 1939.

"JOB PROTECTION"

McCarthy described a series of meetings of members of Connolly's office staff in the winter of 1938-1939.

At those meetings, he said, he explained to fellow employes the necessity of protecting their jobs by helping Connolly meet political campaign expenses.

After each meeting, he reported to Connolly and obtained additional data from Connolly in regard to the latter's political expenditures, McCarthy testified.

He said Connolly authorized him to put the office work on a "skeleton basis" and allow a committee of employes to check up on records of Connolly's expenses to satisfy themselves of the need for contributions.

In regard to the red and green account book, allegedly containing records of employes' "good-will" contributions to Connolly, McCarthy testified:

"I had a conversation with Mr. Connolly before I began making the contributions. In substance, Mr. Connolly told me if we were going ahead with such a plan I had better keep a record for my own protection.

WANTED BOOKS KEPT

"He said some of the employes might want to know how much was paid and if they had paid the past month and I could tell them the condition of their account."

"In addition, Mr. Connolly suggested that if we were going to use it as part of the campaign fund in 1940, they would want to deduct it from that amount."

Those getting $1700 a year were expected to contribute $5 a month in bi-monthly payments of $2.50 each, McCarthy testified.

He said $1000-a-year employes were expected to pay $3 a month in $1.50 bi-monthly payments.

Among the $1700-a-year workers from whom he allegedly collected, he named Joseph Brophy, Walter P. Harmon, Atty. Adam Palaza (one-time candidate for the Boston school committee), John Tobin, Joseph F. Toomey and William Toohig.

Among the $1000-a-year employes on the contributing list he named Dominic de Silvio, Samuel Epstein, John J. MacDonald and Fred L. Sweeney.

Last witness before McCarthy was Miss Catherine De Courcey, Connolley's former private secretary. She said "good will" contributions by Connolly's employes were on a voluntary basis.

MONTHLY CONTRIBUTIONS

She said she had been given her post after working on Connolly's election campaign. It was she, it was testified, that collected on bi-monthly paydays from girl employes in Connolly's office.

"Eight or nine" of the girls in the office made monthly contributions, and she herself contributed $7 a month to the fund, Miss DeCourcey testified.

"The girls put the money on my desk," she said.

She stated she was in charge of Connolly's "personal expenses," after which Asst. Dist. Atty. Doyle asked her:

"What do you mean by good will fund?"

Volunteer contributions, was her reply.

"This fund was for political expenses of Connolly, wasn't it?" questioned Doyle.

"Yes," replied the girl.

'Weather Boat' Here After Gales

Riding out almost constant gales for a full month on station in mid-Atlantic on government weather observation work, the Coast Guard cutter Duane reached port today.

She had left one of her crew at Ponta Del Gada, Azore Islands, recovering from an emergency operation for a ruptured appendix. Although the cutter carries a surgeon, an operation aboard ship was impossible because of the stormy weather.

So the cutter dashed for the Azores and there George A. Landers, a seaman, was operated on by a refugee doctor from Germany who has established a small hospital on the island.

Comdr. J. H. Cornell said the crew's greatest thrill was in seeing the great Clippers pass on their way to Europe.

The weather service was inaugurated partly to aid the huge flying boats. Two cutters are stationed in the Atlantic to make constant reports on weather conditions.

Manton Pays Fine; Goes to Jail Friday

NEW YORK, March 6 (AP)—Former Judge Martin T. Manton of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals today turned over a $10,000 certified check to the district court clerk in payment of the fine imposed on him after his conviction of conspiracy to obstruct justice.

He must surrender Friday to start serving a two-year penitentiary sentence in addition.

Proposes $500 Fee On Pinball Machines

UNDERHILL, Vt., March 6—This town voted to impose a $500 license fee on pinball machines, but whether it ever will collect on the only one in town remained a mystery today.

'Poison' Death Report Ready

State Police Chemist Dr. Joseph Walker, said today that his report on the analysis of the organs of Mrs. Minnie Hathaway, of Asonet whose death last week is being investigated, has been mailed to District Atty. William C. Crossley.

The 43-year-old woman died insisting that she had been given a mysterious poison in a cup of coffee.

Mary Cohan Becomes Bride of Musician

DOYLESTOWN, Pa., March 6 (AP)—George M. Cohan's singing daughter, Mary, and George Ranken, 32, New York night club accordionist, were married here by a justice of the peace today—five days after an elopement that went awry because of Pennsylvania marriage laws.

The actor's daughter and the musician, who became her second husband, motored here last Thursday and applied for a marriage license. They returned to New York when told about the three-day waiting requirement.

Power Output On Rebound

NEW YORK, March 6 (AP)—Electric power production broke a six-week decline in the week of March 2 with a more than seasonally expected rebound.

Latest production of 2,479,036,000 kilowatt hours, as reported today by the Edison Electric Institute, was 1 per cent more than 2,455,285,000 in the preceding week and 10.5 per cent ahead of 2,241,014,000 in the comparable 1939 week.

The advance carried the Associated Press power index, based on 1929-30 as 100, to 124.8 from 123.8, low of the year, in the previous week. The index, which is adjusted for seasonal and long-term trend, stood at 115.2 a year ago.

Pure Oil Net Up

CHICAGO, March 6 (AP)—The Pure Oil Company has reported a net profit of $8,290,418 for 1939, equal to $1.11 a common share after preferred dividend requirements. This compared with $5,412,903, or 38 cents a common share in 1938.

B. & M. BOND PLEA SENT GOVERNOR

A plea that the Commonwealth of Massachusetts agree to the plan of exchange which is now before the bondholders of the Boston & Maine to exchange the $9,000,000 in bonds now held by the State for new bonds of the Boston & Maine without exercising the alternative right involving the limited cash option, was made by Oscar W. Haussermann, president of the Boston Chamber of Commerce today, in letters sent to Governor Saltonstall, Atty.-Gen. Paul A. Dever, and State Treas. William E. Hurley.

In his letter to the state officials, Pres. Haussermann states that the board of directors of the Boston Chamber of Commerce has passed a resolution favoring the proposal of the Boston & Maine for a voluntary exchange of bonds on the basis of the exchange recently formulated and that the committee on transportation of the Boston Chamber of Commerce "has given careful consideration to the proposed voluntary plan of exchange, and has reported its conclusion to the Chamber's board of directors."

QUESTION SCORES IN FIRE

NEW YORK, March 6 (AP)—Scores of witnesses were questioned today by fire officials seeking the cause of a roaring fire that swept an unfinished $1,250,000 hangar at LaGuardia field, New York's $10,000,000 airport.

The fire, causing part of the roof to collapse and steel girders to buckle, started in a painter's shack within the hangar late yesterday afternoon. A dozen firemen and workmen narrowly missed death when the roof caved in.

Damage estimates ranged from $250,000 to $1,000,000.

Investigators checked an unconfirmed report that several hundred WPA workers employed at the hangar had been discharged shortly before the fire broke out.

ULCER SUFFERERS

Aid Temporary Relief of

STOMACH PAINS

WITHOUT BICARBONATE OF SODA OR DRUGS . . .

If you are forever tortured by the gnawing pain of a stomach ulcer, try PEROKA TABLETS as an aid for the temporary relief of your pain. PEROKA TABLETS are tasteless, easy-to-take tablets made with soothing vegetable mucilloids. They consist of a rare blend of sea vegetables very rich in health-giving food minerals. These wonderful tablets also contain Okra, which supplies vegetable mucin, a substance used in many hospitals for treating ulcers.

Most important of all, PEROKA TABLETS do not contain cathartics or laxatives, no salts, no cascara, no bicarbonate of soda or other chemicals found in many so-called "stomach tablets". These scientific PEROKA tablets do not contain grains or other habit-forming drugs. PEROKA TABLETS are unconditionally guaranteed to be free of all dangerous drugs of any kind.

If PEROKA TABLETS can bring you the relief from pain you seek, then you are now suffering from unnecessary pain. You may never know how PEROKA TABLETS can help you until you have tried them. CUT OUT THIS ADVERTISEMENT—present it with only $1.2- for a large bottle of PEROKA TABLETS at your nearest Nature Food Centres store today. They are enthusiastically recommended by America's largest chain of health food stores. Mail orders sent postpaid.

Lou Smith and Sam Simon are vacationing together in Hot Springs, and Lou is combining his vacation with labor. The Hot Springs track, Oaklawn, has a better class of horses than in previous years and Lou has booked many of the leading stables for Rockingham.

"CHAD HANNAH" is a story about the early circus and the book is touted as the possible biggest best-seller of 1940 . . . Because Walter Edmonds, author of "Chad Hannah," is the lad who wrote "Drums Along the Mohawk," the leading character of his new novel is being described as the "Huckleberry Finn of the Mohawk Valley" . . . WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pints of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food may not digest. It may just decay in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. You feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pints of bile flowing freely to make you feel "up and up." Amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name, 10¢ and 25¢. Stubbornly refuse anything else.

Death Reveals 'Wife' Is Man

REDWOOD CITY, Cal., March 6 (AP)—The body of a 71-year-old man, whose life-long masquerade as a woman was revealed by his death, lay in a mortuary here today while authorities sought to learn if relatives would claim it for burial.

Known as "Mrs. Adele Best," the man died in a hospital here after a brief illness.

Chief of Police C. L. Collins and other authorities who investigated the strange case said they learned the man had once gone through a marriage ceremony as the "bride" of Albert Best, former San Jose resident, and they had lived together until Best's death 10 years ago.

AUSTEN LAKE

Print-Portrait of Joe's Kid Brother

SARASOTA, March 6—Dominic, the 170-pound baby of the DiMaggio brood, fitted on a freshly laundered uniform of white woolens with "Red Sox" in red lettering across the front. He smoothed down his black marcelled locks under a blue baseball cap and clattered out of the Red Sox clubhouse—an owlish looking youth behind his rimless spectacles and looking less like a professional athlete than a scholastic bookworm.

AUSTEN LAKE

Dominic DiMaggio jogged around the outfield fences, easing the tug of the shirt under his arm pits and warming his knees with little prances. Amateur camera cranks from the neighboring trailer camp pointed their black boxes and began snapping pictures. "Joe DiMaggio's kid brother," spectators in the stands told one another. Newsmen studied him with professional squints. "Doesn't look much like Joe," they said. From the bleachers a raucous-voiced wag bawled, "Hey, Dom! Think yer as good as Joe?"

The toothless old native didn't know it, but he was voicing young Dominic's greatest handicap to success in the major leaguers—being brother to the Yankees' incomparable Joe. Later in the clubhouse Dom said so himself. While Trainer Win Green jiggled his nude form with patticake slaps, Dominic searched his mind for something to tell the baseball writers.

"Joe's brother!" he said, as though tasting the words, "... I get that everywhere. I guess I gotta do things faster and better because Joe does them that way ... it's a tough standard to be judged by."

Dominic said this without rancor, half in jest, and the newsmen laughed: Yet there was more than a touch of truth in what he said. For in the minds of the baseball fans there is only one DiMaggio measure—Joe's super-ability! One remembers how the grandstand jury at Bees Field passed judgment on brother Vince a few years back. "Well," they said, "he isn't a Joe DiMaggio." And he wasn't. Neither will young Dominic be!

Dom may be a good journeyman or even a brilliant outfielder. But nature didn't equip him with Joe's turtle neck, his gangling legs or leverage in length of arm. So Dom doesn't hit with Joe's long, slicing swing and he hasn't Joe's muscular power. But he hits sharply, rifling the ball with low, solid shots that travelled in white blurrs—a Bobby Doerr type of batter rather than one of Ted Williams' sort.

Dom is hardly a chatterbox! None of the three DiMaggio boys are noted for their gabble. But compared with Joe, Dom is a fountain of forensics once one breaks through his monosyllabic crust. "It's gonna be a treat to play daylight ball," he said during the evening porch forums, "I've played mostly night ball and those lights used to shine on my glasses."

He started wearing spectacles, he said, when he moved up from the sandlots to the San Francisco Seals. He was a shortstop then and on his own admission, not a very good one. "Charley Graham, owner

BRUINS ONE POINT BACK OF RANGERS

Grounded in Detroit Monday because of adverse conditions, the Bruins literally flew all over the Red Wings at the Garden to bury the hapless Wings, 7 to 2.

More than 10,000 fans saw the Bruins keep their word and avenge their Sunday night humiliation in taking the Wings apart in the last league meeting between the two teams.

The only sad note of the triumph was that President Weston Adams and Manager Art Ross, who came back from Detroit yesterday raging over their treatment in Detroit, were unable to enjoy the massacre as both rushed home in the afternoon victims of the grippe.

But Cooney Weiland did all the master minding necessary. All he had to do was let the boys go, and how they went!

Detroit evidently felt that the proper way to halt the B's was to check them out of the Garden and for the first ten minutes some of the "slam-bangingest" hockey ever seen at the North Station was put on display.

The Bruins let the Wings keep flailing away until they tired under the terrific pressure and then, business-like, went to work.

POINTS WELL SPLIT

No less than 11 players figured in the B's seven goals with Bobby Bauer and Milt Schmidt dividing individual honors. Bobby came up with two goals and an assist while Milt had one goal and two assists. Red Hamill and Mel Hill each picked up a goal and an assist. Other goals were chalked up by Roy Conacher, Herb Cain and Dit Clapper. Bill Cowley, Jack Crawford, Des Smith and Eddie Wiseman fattened a bit with an assist apiece.

Honors had to go to the Kraut Line for the night but this was only fitting and proper in view of the fact that they were celebrating Milt Schmidt's 22nd birthday.

It was Bobby Bauer who beat Tiny Thompson for the first goal of the night and the only score in the opening canto. He fired from about 30 feet out and the shot was so completely screened that Tiny did not see it until it was too late.

In the second period, the Bruins completely subdued the Wings. Smith started the first assault of this session by passing to Cowley and Bill kept the play rolling by nudging the puck to Conacher, Roy then came in clear, faked Thompson out and plopped the rubber home in 5:52.

Five minutes later, Schmidt tallied and Herb Cain added to the insult at 15:07 when he gleefully poked Crawford's rebound into the strings.

Leading 5 to 0 as the third period opened, the Bruins relaxed a bit on defense and Syd Abel slapped

Ski Scribblings

BY "TAP" GOODENOUGH

SUN TAN SKIING in shirtsleeves was enjoyed by thousands last week-end as a bright sun rushed the spring schussing season, causing the temperature to rise to 40 degrees and also creating a corn snow surface . . . Since we wanted to be at three ski centers at once and didn't have a magic carpet to fly o'er the snow fields, we finally decided to join the recreational runners at North Conway, N. H.

The Sun Valley scene was truly transported to Cranmore Mountain on the Sabbath: Scores were lolling languidly about in deck chairs, lapping up the suns rays with joy. Others strolled around in a spring-fevered daze, talking of their powers on the boards. Here and there, debs arrayed in smart outfits, mingled with clubs who didn't ski to dress' Everyone commented on the glorious day; some even skied . . .

Odd outfits galore were seen at this swank site . . . Many gals swooped down the slopes in swirling skirts . . . Men wore polo shirts . . . One chap donned a green hat with a long orange feather fluttering in the breeze . . . Bright blue plus fours were also noticed, as well as one pair of shorts, too! . . .

The ski patrol on Cranmore Mountain really did a grand job . . . Whiz Bums who were going too fast were cautioned to slow down, and accidents were kept to a new low . . . Every worn or icy spot was marked by flags, as were rocks and stumps . . . And the skiing was very good! . . . Christying over the north and south sides, as well as running the Big Ben and Toni Matt trails proved to be thrilling sport . . .

Nearly a thousand from the Snow Trains frolicked at Cranmore . . . Two cars were occupied by members of the Scandinavian Club of Boston and vicinity . . . This gay group held their own informal dance in the baggage car, and music was provided by a fiddle and accordion . . . Ski spirit!

STUFF ABOUT SKIERS: Phil Robertson, manager of the Skimobile, told us that this conveyance carried more than 20,000 skiers up the mountain during the week of Washington's Birthday! Skiing is a big business.

We attempted to follow our friend, Skimeister Hannes Schneider down the slope, but it is just a bit difficult to emulate the ease with which Hannes controls his hickorys.

An ardent enthusiast of the sport, Harvey Gibson, who has developed Cranmore and North Conway, comes up from New York every week-end to ski on his beloved mountain . . . All recognize him almost as a landmark . . .

Bryce Santry seems to bump into us everywhere, even on the Skimobile . . . This skier formerly sold Americans and Records in Boston . . . He is now a headlined acrobat and stage star, featured at the leading night clubs . . . And a D D deluxe' . . .

Several members of the Oxhoni Ski Club of Boston were also at North Conway, including Hugh Shaw and son, Paul; Gordon Fullerton of the skiing Fullertons, and Betty Landers, skirt, jacket and all . . . Then we spied Clarence Lunn, dressed like an instructor, having movies made of himself by a friend . . .

Incidentally, that skier whose antics amused hundreds Sunday, dressed in leather shorts, with a blouse, harness and a beret, was a fellow named Jan Wiktor Poponczyk . . . He was garbed like a singing waiter from a beer garden, and those were the only clothes he wore on the entire trip! . . .

SKI SPORTRAIT: Torger Tokle, that sensational Norwegian sky-flier whose soaring skis salute the stars, captured the Eastern ski jumping championship title at Gilford, N. H., on Sunday, and set a new hill record of 235 feet . . .

He was wildly cheered by a crowd of 10,000 . . . Takle, a 20-year-old immigrant from Lokkenverk, Norway, has already taken out his first citizenship papers, and he plans to stay in this country . . . This stocky blond lad is now working as a carpenter's helper on a Brooklyn housing project . . . He has won 64 jumping meets in Norway and has been defeated but twice in 18 starts in America . . . Torger has established six hill records this season . . . A quiet, modest chap, this lithe leaper amazes crowds with his daring style and the powerful lift he gets as he leaves the take-off at 50 or 60 miles per hour . . . His best performance usually doesn't satisfy him; that's why he breaks records! . . .

SKI SHOTS: From Gorham, Me., comes the news that 11 skiers have passed examinations entitling them to become certified instructors of the Maine Ski Instructors Association, President G. Wallace Lovell announced today. The exams, given at different intervals during the season, covered first aid, ski technique, safety and method of instruction . . .

AUSTEN LAKE SAYS:

of the Seals, said he'd give me a chance if I had my eyes examined," he relates. Dom did! His oculist found that he had split-vision, prescribed constant wear of glasses, and manufactured a pair with non-shatterable lenses. "It worked miracles," said Dom. "I could never see a ball curve before—I began to hit."

He hit .360 in the Coast league last year! But will he hit in the majors? "I dunno," says Cronin. "Maybe yes, maybe no." For Joe knows too well the sad saga of some Coast league sluggers who, weirdly, lost their magic in the majors and leaked back to the Pacific slope. "I'll be satisfied if he hits an even .290 this season," said Joe.

Ted Williams, who played with Dom on the Pacific Coast, is more enthusiastic. "He'll hit," he assures, "and he'll be a hit with the Boston fans. I've seen that kid field balls that looked hopeless and I've seen him throw men from deep positions when off balance. Look at his record! He had 31 assists last year—and that's a lot for an outfielder. And he stole 41 bases."

But will Cronin give the kid his head on the baselines this year? "Dunno," says Joe with his invariable doubt.

Dominic likes to talk about his family—his four brothers, Tom, Mike, Vince and Joe, and his five sisters. Born in San Francisco on February 12, 1918, when Lefty Grove was working in a Cumberland coal pocket and pitching village baseball on the side, Dom tells how his father supported his large and hungry brood with a little fishing boat. The family ate part of the catch and sold what was left. "It was fish for breakfast, dinner and supper," says Dom. "Fish, fish, fish! Maybe that's why I can't look a fish in the eye now." For, although the DiMaggios have a large and successful sea-food restaurant in San Francisco now, Dom leans toward the animal and vegetable kingdom for his training food now.

There is nothing melodramatic about "the little professor." Like his two brothers, Joe and Vince, he lacks a pictorial personality. He has none of that happy, hilarious nonsense of the fun-loving Ted Williams in his system. But that's no drawback. One like Thumping Theodore in a ball club is enough!

Managoff Duels Dusek at Arena

Bobby Managoff, youthful Armenian wrestler, will try to even his score with Ernie Dusek of Nebraska in a finish bout at a Paul Bowser show at the Arena tonight.

Dusek won a lucky victory over Managoff, Referee Charley Donnell got in the way of a Managoff tackle, and was floored himself. While Donnell was out of commission, Managoff tossed Dusek, but the referee wasn't in position to see what happened. Later Dusek pinned Managoff to gain the decision.

Managoff's dad was a famous wrestler in the days of Frank Gotch. As a chip of the old block, Managoff has been schooled in the fine points of the mat game.

PRELIMINARIES

RALPH GARIBALDI, New York, vs. TONY JORDAN, Boston.

(First bout at 8:15. First main event about 9:30.)

In a co-feature, Yvon Robert will have Tom Casey as an opponent. Robert is in the midst of a comeback campaign which he hopes will gain him a title match with Steve Casey. Robert would also like to get a crack at The Angel.

Tom Casey was a heavyweight boxer in Ireland, and plans to jolt Robert around the ring tonight.

In the semi-final, Pedro Brazil, champion of South America, will make his second appearance here against Les Ryan, former Fordham grid star. Brazil, who hails from Rio de Janeiro looked impressive here in his first showing.

Preliminary matches include Gino Garibaldi, sturdy Italian, vs. Ernest Franz Hefner, who proclaims to the world that he is its "bad man champion," and Ralph Garibaldi vs. Tony Jordan.

'Pics Meet Nemesis In Playoff Opener

By SAM BROGNA

A determined band of Olympics will make their first bid for the Senior Provincial League hockey crown in two years tonight when they meet their old nemesis, the Verdun Bulldogs, in the first round of a best two-out-of-three-game series at the Garden.

With their defense forces far from being in No. 1 physical condition and two ace linemen out, the locals will be greatly handicapped.

HOLDS EDGE ON PICS

This Canadian outfit is the only aggregation in the league that the 'Pics have been able to defeat only once this season. This win came after the Bulldogs had handed them three straight setbacks, including a 12 to 2 shellacking, their worst in league competition.

The win, a 4 to 0 whitewashing handed the visitors last Friday, however, was an important one as it elevated them to second position where they finished.

Tonight's meeting, will be their sixth.

Coach Hago Harrington has decided to wait until game time to name his starting defense. Junie Stubbs and Bill Splaine have recovered from their charley horses but both Art Smith and Jim Feeley are still a'ling and it is still doubtful whether either one will take part in the opener.

ANDERSON TO CARRY LOAD

It again seems as though the extra burden will be left upon the sturdy shoulders of Ty Anderson if either Smith or Feeley are ready for full time duty.

The two junior stars, Ernie Garron and Johnnie Fitzgerald who teamed together with Bob Jeremiah on the third line in the concluding game last Sunday, will be intact for tonight's fray.

Bill Cleary and Ed Martel of Montreal have been selected as the officials.

Bruins Gain On Rangers

the puck at Ken Kilrea, who "stole" it from Clapper to beat Brimsek in 1:55. This irked our heroes a bit and 54 seconds later Hamill took Bauer's assist and smoked a shot by Thompson so fast that Tiny could not have saved with a fruit basket.

With just over a minute to go, the Bruins again let up for a moment and Alex Motter forgot his old allegiance to the B's long enough to aid Syd Howe in the Wings' final counter of the night.

Bobby Bauer took this second goal as a personal affront and he swept in alone 35 seconds later and outguessed Thompson single-handed.

The Bruins picked up two points on the league leading Rangers and now trail the Blue Shirts by a single point . . . If the Rossmen can take the Americans in New York tomorrow night, they go back into first place . . . Milt Schmidt just about clinched individual scoring honors with his lone goal and two assists to bring his total up to 48 which puts him nine points ahead of Bryan Hextall of the Rangers and his pal Woody Dumart . . . it's too bad Dumart couldn't have picked up a point to go into second place.

Bobby Bauer, who was tied for sixth with Phil Watson, jumped into fourth place with 38 points just a step below Woody Dumart and Bryan Hextall . . . here is a strange note—Bill Cowley by chalking up an assist broke his fourth place tie with Phil Watson but went down to fifth place because of Bauer's three points . . . Watson is now sixth.

The scorers originally gave Bobby his first goal unassisted but, on a recapitulation after the game, it was decided that Schmidt had assisted on the play . . . The Bruins have now won 11 straight home games and 19 out of 21 on the Garden ice this year . . . Detroit hasn't beaten the Bruins here in Boston since early in the December of 1937 . . . last night's game was the final league meeting between the two clubs and the Bruins wound up with five victories in eight meetings.

Detroit was without the services of Ebbie Goodfellow and Eddie Wares . . . Ebbie was at his brother's funeral while Eddie is on the injured list.

Cooney Weiland was no little perturbed before the game when he was erroneously informed that Norm Lamporte was to work the game . . . Cooney put a terrific blast on Lamporte for his work in Detroit last Sunday night and blames him for three unearned goals scored by the Wings . . . Cooney characterized the affair 'as one of the poorest handled games I had ever seen."

The B's leave at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning for New York to start a home and home series with the Americans . . . they play tomorrow night and then return home and again meet the Duttonmen Saturday night—the first Saturday game of the year at home

Karakas Returns To Minor League

CHICAGO, March 6 (AP)—Goalie Mike Karakas finally has decided to play minor league hockey with the Providence, R. I., Reds rather than sit at home in Eveleth, Minn.

The Chicago Blackhawks sent Karakas to Providence last Dec. 26 when he was replaced by Paul Goodman. After a few games there Karakas quit and said he didn't want to play for a minor league salary.

GROVE'S '40 GOAL 300TH VICTORY OF HILL CAREER

By HERB FINNEGAN

SARASOTA, Fla., March 6—Lefty Grove was in a playful mood this morning. He sank his elbow deep into Frank Shellenback's ribs; he grabbed Arthur Murphy by the fleshy part of the leg, leaving a blue imprint of his steel-like fingers; he pried loose the masonry of the hotel veranda; he emitted a loud guffaw and finally seated himself on one of the chairs before they had to send for an ambulance.

"I'm 28 today boys," boomed the great Red Sox southpaw (the record books say he's 40) and I don't feel a day over 21.

"I need only 14 wins to reach the 300 mark and that ought to be a breeze. And when I do grab that old No. 300, I'm going to send the ball to Cooperstown, so they can put it in the Hall of Fame."

SWAPS TALES WITH DOM

He prattled on, telling of his experiences driving at night, of the night Rube Walberg crashed into his car, of the mirror digging a perfect V out of Joe Bush's scalp.

He swapped fishing tales with young Dominic DiMaggio, breaking up the conversation at times to muss up Johnny Orlando's hair, or to take a kick at the moon.

HAS SPIRIT OF YOUTH

He can kick over his head six feet 3 inches away without the slightest effort, making one think what a punter he might have been if they had played football in the hills of Lonsconing, Md.

It was a memorable picture.

Lefty, 40 years old and 20 years married, with a background of 15 years in the majors, and Dom DiMag, just 22 and yet to play his first major league game.

The one in the twilight of a most astonishing career, the other on the threshold. And yet the older man possessing all the enthusiasm of the lowliest rookie, looking forward with eagerness to a season in which he hoped to attain his goal of 300 victories in the major league.

It is fortunate, in a way, that he has one big objective for one often wonders what keeps him going. Surely, he has gained all the honors the game holds.

What keeps him going?

It must be only his intense love for the game.

What else could have brought him back a year ago after his arm went "dead" during July of 1938?

Doctors warned him not to pitch again. They feared further strain might possibly mean amputation. But Lefty just paid no mind, and went out and won 15 ball games for the second place Sox.

And if you watch him during morning practice here, you would be further convinced. Working like the veriest rookie, he has his arm in excellent trim, and the rest of his body is always that way.

He still is off the cigars he banished in 1938 when his arm went dead. He figured they had been hurting him. Imagine a man with that wil power. Imagine any other man in the world at 40 looking forward to his 16th season in the majors as eagerly as he did his first!

Truly the wonder man.

ICE FETE OPENS TOMORROW

The Ice Carnival of 1940, taged by the Skating Club of Boston at its own indoor rink on Soldiers Field rd., will open tomorrow night and five performances will be given. Evening shows are listed tomorrow night, Friday and Saturday, with matinees on Saturday and Sunday.

Such notables as Erna Andersen, champion of Norway; Phyllis Thompson, 9-year-old champion of the Pacific Coast; Pierre and Brunet, of France; Richard Salter, of Canada; Guy Owen, professional ace; Alfred Trenkler, comedian, of Austria, and local stars as headliners.

Joan Tozzer, for the third successive year United States women's senior champion, with Bernard Fox again winner of the senior pair title; Dorothy Glazier and Stephen Tanner, Polly Blodgett, Gretchen Merrill, James D. Madden, Frederick Goodridge, Richard L. Hapgood, George E. D. Hill and Sherwin Badger also appear in the various colorful numbers.

QUINN RATES BEES 2 YEARS AWAY

Coleman Claims Javery Will Make Team

By BILL GRIMES

BRADENTON, Fla., March 6—Since the Baby Bees began to round into shape, Bob Quinn has been wearing a smile . . . He has been around spring camps too long to be taken in by "morning glories" . . . He's never been strong for making predictions . . . So, when he comes out flat footed and declares that within two years, Casey Stengel will have a great ball club, you may lay it on the line without fear of blowing your money.

He belives that the Bees will have a stronger and better balanced pitching corps . . . Lou Fette, Dick Errickson, Bill Posedel, Bill Swift and Jim Tobin should be the starting pitchers when the Bees break camp . . . If they are, it will be because they have shown more stuff and not because of their reputations.

The veterans will be pressed hard and cannot afford to ease up . . . Don French, who won 15 games for Indianapolis, is well schooled in Class AA ball and is starting his fourth season in organized ball . . . Bill McKechnie was hot after French but Leo Miller of the Indianapolis club had agreed a year ago to give Bob Quinn the inside track on this star pitcher.

George Earnicle, Joe Callahan and Al Javery will be in the running for starting berths . . . "Barney" began his career with Beaver Falls in '37 . . . Although he has plenty of stuff and knows what he's doing when he's out on the mound, "Barney's best asset is his intestional fortitude . . . He's at his best when the pressure is on and in a clutch will not hesitate to "loosen up" the hitter . . .

Callahan and Javery are Bob Coleman products . . . Bob declares that they'll both make the Bees . . . And, Coleman hasn't made many predictions that haven't come through . . . Then, there is Nick Strincevich, a rangy six foot right-hander, who has picked up more pitching knowledge since he hit camp than he had any idea there was left to learn . . .

The catching should be better for Al Lopez has finally mastered the art of hitting to right field, while Phil Masi, with a year's experience under his belt, is greatly improved over last spring.

At this time, Maxie West is the only player, other than the batterymen, with a worthwhile lien on a regular berth . . . However, regardless of Casey Stengel's final selection, the Bees will have far better replacements than any Boston National League Club has had in many many years . . . During a press meeting, Casey Stengel refused to select what he considered his first six outfielders . . .

The Quinn girls, Margaret and Mary, are driving home . . . They planned to visit friends in Knoxville, Tenn., but changed their plans, due to road conditions . . . Although he misses his friend and pinocle opponent, Leo Gaulston, Jacob Simons is enjoying his stay here and is picking the Bees to finish in the first division . . . "Bud" Bates, who hit .321 for Memphis last season, is a real ball hawk and has displayed more power with the bat than was expected . . . Despite the fact that he has a pulled groin muscle . . .

All last season, Max West was handicapped by a growth under the web between his right thumb and fore finger . . . He had the growth removed this winter and no longer suffers when hitting . . . And by the way, Max is about ten pounds lighter than when he reported last spring . . . And, judging from the strap sandals he's wearing Slapsie Maxie has gone Hollywood.

* * *

Although they are put through two sessions daily, the Bees talk nothing but baseball around the hotel . . . They are getting so much inside stuff that they had never heard of that they are all anxious to absorb every thing they are told by the coaches . . .

Levy Makes Hit In Phil Workout

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., March 6 (AP)—Ed Levy, the six-foot, five-inch first baseman who the Philadelphia Nationals purchased from Newark, made his training debut here with a series of line drives that brought smiles to the face of Manager Doc Prothro.

Despite Levy's bat work, top honors of the day went to young Danny Litwhiler who lined one over the left field fence, 387 feet from home plate, with yards to spare for the longest hit of the practice session. Prothro announced the first intra-camp game will be played Sunday.

B. C. Batterymen Work Lightly

Baseball is swinging along now at Boston College under Coach Fred Maguire, the ex-major league fielding wizard, who greeted his battery candidates and after preliminary words of wisdom, sent a couple of dozen ambitious youths through a light workout to loosen the kinks of the winter.

Capt. Frank Burns, husky Roslindale senior, who last year played the outfield and later did most of the team's catching, led the batterymen through their first workout.

Fred Leahy, strong armed senior from Somerville, headed the list of pitching talent. Leahy and Burns formed the battery which was instrumental in taking last spring's rubber match from the powerful Holy Cross nine. The former pitched marvelous ball and the latter contributed some great hitting to squash the Crusaders in a close contest.

Though Burns reported with the battery candidates he will in all probability return to his first love—the outfield.

Jim Byrne, who was the regular catcher last spring until he was declared ineligible early in the campaign, looks like the best receiver on Chestnut Hill just now.

Coach Maguire will depend upon Somerville's Leahy for most of his hurling strength although boys like Connie McGrath of Brookline, John "Leftie" Sullivan of Belmont, Bill Lepeisha of Worcester and Bob McGovern of Somerville, all of whom have had some varsity experience, should be able to add some of the support necessary to make Boston College a potent nine this spring.

N. E. Bouts On Garden Card

The Garden will be the "battlefield of action" Monday night when Gene Driscoll and his boxing committee stage the annual New England A. A. U. championships.

The program will consist of bouts in eight classes at championship weights, with five boys in each division.

Grimes Headed For Indian Camp

FORT MYERS, Fla., March 6 (AP)—Competition for the Cleveland Indians' second base job shows signs of increasing.

Oscar Grimes, a leading candidate who has been recovering at Cleveland from a minor knee operation, leaves the lake city today with Alva Bradley, club president, for the Tribe's spring training camp here.

ELSIE ROBINSON writes the woman's viewpoint, discusses every-day affairs and problems, regularly in the Boston American.

DiMaggio Signs For $30,000; Reports Friday

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 6—Joe DiMaggio, who ended his annual holdout yesterday and agreed to accept about $30,000 for his season's labors, expects to get into the New York Yankees' first exhibition game Friday.

In notifying President Ed Barrow of his acceptance, Joe said he would leave San Francisco on an early train today and would be ready to play when he reached camp.

Third Baseman Red Rolfe, who also ended his holdout, probably will delay his start, however. Rolfe is a notoriously slow starter, and it likely will take him some time to get into playing condition.

Betty Jameson Wins Florida Golf Medal

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., March 6 (INS)—Betty Jameson, 20-year-old national women's champion, won medalist honors in the qualifying round of the sixteenth annual Florida East Coast women's championship with a fine 74 over the St. Augustine links.

Trailing Miss Jameson was Clare Callender, 20-year-old Long Beach, Cal., girl, making her first visit to Florida tourneys, with a 75. Patty Berg, 1938 national champion, and Elizabeth Hicks, 19-year-old Long Beach girl, had 77's.

Taisto Maki Runs in Frisco

SAN FRANCISCO, March 6 (AP)—Taisto Maki, who exchanged a soldier's rifle for an athlete's spike to help build up the depleted finances of his native Finland, apparently is not far off the form that enabled him to crack running records right and left less than a year ago.

The mud of Finnish trenches, heavy boots and war ordeals are still fresh memories, yet without much training the 141-pound speedster stepped out here last night to easily win a three-mile race. He was timed in 14 minutes, 15.3 seconds, without being pressed to make it.

Accompanied by Paavo Nurmi, his countryman and world's greatest distance runner of the early '20's, Maki made his first appearance in this country in what will be a series of performances dedicated to the benefit of the Finnish Relief Fund. Nurmi, now 43 years old and partly bald, ran an exhibition half mile.

Somerville Five Choice in Tech Opening Tilt

Opening the Class A competition, Watertown high school basketball team stands a fine chance of breaking into top billing when Coach Dan Sullivan's boys take on a favored Somerville quintet in the first round of the upper bracket of the Tech Tourney, at the Tech hangar tomorrow afternoon.

Defeated only once this season, Somerville rates with Chelsea as the team to beat to capture the championship.

Watertown can't boast an equally strong record over its winter campaign. Playing in independent competition, Sullivan's boys have registered 13 triumphs against 3 defeats—a mark that the Somerville team won't belittle.

Coach Sullivan's hopeful giant killers will consist of the same five boys that have worked regularly all year. This group will have Paladino and Johnson, guards; George Yankowski and Bill Kearns, forwards, with Lucky Zissus at center.

In the other half of the afternoon round, New Bedford, runner-up last year, takes on Lawrence to complete the twin bill.

In the evening session, Attleboro opens against Newton with Haverhill and Chelsea closing the first day of activity.

The Class B teams will open the tourney this afternoon with Braintree and Needham, followed by Franklin and Newburyport Highs.

The evening games will bring together Winthrop-Chelmsford and Reading-Framingham.

Harvard Quintet Guns for 2d Win

Harvard and Penn basketball teams play the second game of their annual series tonight at the Harvard gym.

Crimsons defeated the invading team by two points in an overtime thriller at the Quaker City earlier in the season.

A win over the Red and Blue tonight and a victory over Yale on Saturday would mean a very successful season for the Crimsons who were the early season choice for the doormat title.

Harvard lacks the size and experience to cope with most of the teams in the league, but good ball handling and speed have partially offset the liability.

Caps Still the Team to Beat

By the Associated Press

The Indianapolis Capitals still are the team to beat for the International - American League hockey honors.

The Caps got away to an early season start that skyrocketed them far ahead of the field, but the other teams began to catch up slowly.

Last night, the Pittsburgh Hornets had a chance to tie the Caps for the western division lead. But the Caps, who had gone victoryless for nine straight games, were back on home ice, and they edged out a 1-0 victory in the last five seconds of play.

At the same time, the Providence Reds made some news on the eastern division front, winning a last minute, 5-4, victory over the Syracuse Stars and thereby virtually eliminating the Stars from western division play-off contention.

In the third International-American game, the Hershey Bears had an easy time defeating the Springfield Indians, 7-3, in the Bears' last appearance this season on Springfield ice.

Mr. BOSTON

By JACK CONWAY

BASKETBALL IS coming back to the Boston high schools after an absence of 30 years. The sport that now attracts more people than any other athletic pastime has won the support of Chairman Joseph C. White and Joseph Lee of the Boston School Committee. Other members of the School Committee are also reported as favorable toward adding basketball to the list of sports in the Boston schools.

Erna Anderson

"I believe basketball should be played in the Boston schools," said Lee while addressing the members of the Eastern board of approved basketball officials. "It will first be necessary to make gymnasium arrangements.

"For a part of each afternoon during the Winter months, the gymnasiums are used for track athletics. There is not any desire to curtail this branch of athletics. There are, however, open periods at the high school gyms late afternoons, while the gyms are available every night."

Chairman White also went on record as in favor of basketball in the schools.

The ban on basketball in the Boston high schools resulted from care free spectators walking out on the various courts and engaging in free-for-all battles. This may have been swell fun for those who participated in it, but it was frowned upon by the school authorities.

BASKETBALL HAS come a long ways since those days. It draws as many as 17,000 spectators at the New York Garden.

The New England college and club games have attracted large gatherings.

The officials keep the players well under control, and as a result there is not so much danger of disturbances involving spectators.

Bill Coady told me that larger and better halls will help build up basketball interest in New England.

"All courts should be of the same size," said Bill. "With more adequate halls this could be possible. The game could be built from the local neighborhood games to a point where it would attract sell-out crowds at the Garden."

I HAVE ALWAYS felt that anybody who was foolish enough to act as a judge in beauty contest was merely inviting somebody to punch him on the chin. Despite this knowledge I listened attentively when Dick Hapgood asked me to drop in at the skating carnival of the Boston Skating Club and compare Erna Anderson, Norwegian skating star, with Sonja Henie as an ice beauty and as a skater.

Sonja Henie

Erna Anderson made her Boston skating debut at the Silver Skates Derby of the American-Record. At that time I was watching the Mardi Gras celebration in New Orleans and so did not have an opportunity to rate the Norwegian star.

Since my arrival home good judges of feminine charm and skating ability like Will Connell and Ben Levias tell me that Miss Anderson would finish in a dead heat with Sonja in any kind of competition.

I once suggested in this column that Princess Baba of Sarawyk, wife of Wrestler Bob Gregory, was more beautiful than Sonja. I still retained my opinion after getting several hundred letters from Sonja admirers who suggested that as a beauty judge I was not even entitled to a place in the also ran class.

Princess Baba

Princess Baba possesses as much personality as Sonja which is saying a great deal. On the occasion of a Christmas Basket Fund wrestling show at the Boston Garden between Steve Casey and Louis Thesz, the Princess agreed to appear in the Royal Box. Her husband was referee of the match.

I suggested to the Princess that if she were to present a belt to the winner at the ringside it would help the show, and also give the movie and camera men an opportunity to picture her under powerful lights.

"Would it help even more if I made the presentation in the ring where the people could see everything?" asked the Princess.

I told her it would, and so when Casey won the gracious little Princess entered the ring, and with cameras clicking, handed the championship belt to Casey.

DURING A PRESS luncheon at the Copley Plaza Hotel, Princess Baba met Young Happy, Grover Whalen of Wonderland Park. There was conversation about the island of Sarawyk, and the head hunters that used to infest the place.

"The Rajah must have a large harem," remarked Young Happy to the Princess.

"The Rajah," replied the Princess, with a laugh in her voice, "is my father, and he hasn't got a harem."

Young Happy was rather profuse in his apologies. As Young Happy left the dinner party, the Princess bid him goodbye.

"When I meet my father," she declared, "I shall tell him what you said. It may give him an idea."

I would give the Princess a 100 per cent rating for poise and charm.

Stealth

Cautiously these Russian machine-gunners creep through Finnish forest to find new position for their weapon. Note that they wear no white hoods, making them easier targets for Finn defenders.

Red Victory

Blasted by Red bombs, this little Finnish home, although of slight military importance, falls victim to the apparent wanton destruction of Soviet airmen. Meanwhile, as the Soviet drive on Viipuri continues, Finn reinforcements are rushed to the threatened sectors, successfully hurling back the attacking Reds.
